WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The Amnesty bill, upon which the Senate has been engaged for two days, and which it was agreed yesterday should be voted on today, has, nevertheless, been turned over as unfinished business for the Senate when it meets after the Holidays. Several causes combined to arise about this result; one was the determination of Mr. SUMNER to antagonize amnesty with his Civil Rights bill, and it looked only two votes as of being attached as an amendment. Another was the hostility of several Senators to Gen. VANCE, of North Carolina, and their fear that the passage of the bill at this time might have some effect upon his claim to a seat in the Senate. But most of all, the delay in action was caused by the real feeling of the Senate on the question of amnesty. Last Winter there was scarcely a majority in favor of anything like so liberal a bill as the one now proposed. There has been a great change, but those who are negotiators in the policy are decidedly dubious about the terms of the bill they made for, and if a direct vote had been reached today, the requisite two-thirds would not have been obtained. The day's session ended in great and unusual confusion for the Senate, and a Senator coming out from the Chamber remarked, referring to Mr. SUMNER'S proposition to restore the part of Hamlet as he said, to the civil service play, that "the day began with 'Hamlet,' and ended with 'Much Ado About Nothing.'" A vote was early taken on Mr. MORTON'S proposal for an amendment, looking to the certain exclusion of VANCE from such profit by the act as to give him a seat in the Senate, and it was voted down. Then Mr. SUMNER'S Civil Rights bill came up as an amendment, and two hours' discussion was had upon the question of whether it could be entertained. Mr. ANTHONY, in the chair, ruled that it was in order, and an appeal from his decision was taken by Mr. THURMAN, at 4 o'clock, the time fixed for voting. This was the first question to be decided, and the ruling of the Chair was sustained. Then Mr. SUMNER'S amendment was voted on directly and rejected. Then amendment after amendment was offered and voted down, till Mr. MORTON again moved an amendment, aimed at VANCE, embracing a proposition similar to the one which had been voted down. This time it was adopted. The special friends of the measure, those who were most anxious to press the bill through without amendment, so that it could become a law without further action by the House—found a defeat in this vote, though the report of the bill from Committee of the Whole to the Senate gave them another chance; but they succeeded no better. Two hours had now been spent in voting upon the amendments offered, and a good deal of confusion had sprung up, for which Mr. TRUMBULL was responsible, he having been the first one to break over the agreement of the Senate made yesterday, limiting debate. His example was followed by others, till there was no pretence of conforming to the agreement on any side. Mr. KELLOGG made an excited speech, laying the responsibility of the defeat of the measure on Mr. SUMNER. Gen. LOGAN ascribated the action of the Senate to the influence of outside parties, being understood to mean thereby Gen. ABBOTT, who contests VANCE'S seat, and who was present part of the day in the Senate Chamber. The possibility of getting the bill through unamended having failed, the heat of its supporters cooled, and they allowed a vote of adjournment to carry a little before 7 o'clock. Mr. SUMNER declares that he will not vote for amnesty without the adoption of the Civil Rights bill. Mr. CARPENTER and some others agree with him in this, and the Democrats will not vote for amnesty with the Civil Rights bill. Judging from the votes today, however, it is thought Mr. SUMNER'S bill, with some slight amendment, may pass on its own merits, as an independent proposition; and if so, the Amnesty bill will no doubt subsequently find the needful number of votes. The whole subject is left in a very unsettled and unsatisfactory position. The same parties who were the other day abusing Senators EDMUNDS, CONKLING, MORTON and others because they supported the Administration, are to-night charging them with defeating the bill today, and are ready to make new complaints against them because they have not voted, it is claimed, in accordance with the President's recommendation today.

DISCRIMINATING DUTIES AGAINST SPAIN.

The President has issued a proclamation setting forth that the Spanish Government has abolished discriminating duties heretofore imposed on merchandise imported from all other countries, excepting the Islands of Cuba and Porto Rico, into Spain and the adjacent islands in vessels of the United States, to take effect on the 1st of January next, and that therefore similar duties on Spanish vessels are removed.

A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Mr. SUMNER today introduced his one-term constitutional amendment into the Senate. Short as the amendment is, it has a preamble of immense length, which is a curious patch-work of argument, history, biography and commendation of persons living and dead.

THE INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE.

Mr. SUMNER moved an investigation into the allegations about the Samana Bay lease, into which, in emulation of GARRETT DAVIS, he worked all the scandals circulated in unscrupulous newspapers. It did not apparently aim at the President himself, and was passed with an amendment suggested by Mr. EDMUNDS, to add to its effectiveness. The investigation is already loaded down with work, and some of the investigations proposed will very likely have to be transferred to other committees. Mr. DAVIS' Seneca stone resolution was not again brought forward, and its chances of passage are now lost.

ANOTHER FRAUD.

Indictments are in the course of preparation against a person for frauds practiced upon the Government several years ago. There is no statement given of the time when the arrest will be made, and names are withheld from the public, but the evidence in hand is such as to justify the expectation of the recovery of a great many thousand dollars, and a successful criminal prosecution.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

REGULAR REPORT.

SENATE.—WASHINGTON, Thursday, Dec. 21.

The Vice-President announced by letter that he would not be present today, and Mr. ANTHONY was chosen President pro tem.

ONE TERM.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution confining the President to one term. It being with an elaborate preamble, in which ANDREW JACKSON, WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON, HENRY CLAY, BENJAMIN F. WADE, and M. DE TOCQUEVILLE, are liberally quoted, and closes as follows:

Resolved, That the following article is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution, to wit:

ARTICLE —. Section 1. No person who has once held the office of President of the United States shall be thereafter eligible to that office.

Sec. 2. This amendment shall not take effect until after the 4th of March, 1873.

Mr. SUMNER, in introducing this amendment, said: I shall content myself with a brief remark. This is the era of civil service reform, and the President of the United States, in a message, has already called our attention to this important subject, and made recommendations with reference to it. It may be remembered that I hailed that message at once as it was read from the desk. I forbore then to state that I missed one important recommendation, a very important recommendation, one without which all the other recommendations, I fear, may be futile. I missed a recommendation of an amendment of the Constitution, in conformity with the best precedents of our history and of with the recommendations of illustrious men, limiting the person holding the office of President to one term. Sir, that is the initial point of civil service reform. That is the first stage in that great reform. The scheme of the President is the play of "Hamlet" without Hamlet. I propose by the amendment I offer to see that Hamlet be brought into the play. (Laughter.) I propose by the amendment I offer to see that Hamlet be brought into the play. (Laughter.)

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio—Does the Senator propose to postpone the play of civil service reform until we adopt this amendment?

Mr. SUMNER—No, but I propose to put Hamlet into the play. It need not take long to do it.

The joint resolution was read and laid over.

Mr. SUMNER called attention to the fact that the amendment was not to go into effect until March 4, 1873, and therefore would not interfere with the preferences of Senators for any particular candidate next year.

THE SAMANA BAY LEASE.

Mr. SUMNER offered a resolution, which was adopted, directing the Committee on Retrenchment to inquire

Whether any moneys have been paid on account of any contract between the Bay of Samana to the United States, and, if so, by whom, out of what fund, and to what amount. Also, if such moneys have been paid by private persons, then to report the names of such persons, the amounts paid, and the inducements to such outlay, and whether they are interested in land grants or other speculations on the is and of San Domingo; and whether there has been any understanding that such moneys would be refunded by the United States. Also, to ascertain the application of such moneys, and the agents in obtaining and disbursing the same, with power to send for persons and papers.

POSTAL CONTRACTS.

Mr. KELLOGG, of Louisiana, introduced a bill relating to proposals and contracts for the transportation of the mails and for other purposes, which was referred to the Committee on Post-offices.

The bill makes it a misdemeanor for any one to refuse to enter into and perform a contract after receiving the award therefor; declares that no bidder shall be relieved from his obligation under his bid, even after an award is made to a lower bidder, until the contract shall have been duly signed by the latter. It is also provided that the Postmaster-General may reject bids for mail service which shall appear to him, upon investigation, to be fraudulent or fictitious, and among other provisions is one that, after a regular bidder or contractor shall have failed, either to enter into contract, or to fulfill his contract when made, the Postmaster-General shall proceed to contract, on the best obtainable terms, with any responsible party, whether a bidder or not, for performing the said service.

THE NORTON DEFALCATION.

Mr. SAWYER, of South Carolina, offered a resolution which was agreed to,

Directing the Postmaster-General to inform the Senate what persons were sureties in the official bond of Mr. NORTON, the late defaulting clerk in the New-York Custom-House; if he had given such bond, and if otherwise, who were the sureties in the official bond of such other officer as may have been responsible for the official conduct of said NORTON; the amount to which such sureties were severally bound; whether the amount of the defalcation of said NORTON has been repaid into the Treasury, and if otherwise, what steps, if any, have been taken to secure such payment by suits against said sureties, or otherwise.

GENERAL AMNESTY.

The unfinished business, the House General Amnesty bill, was taken up.

The pending amendment was that of Mr. MORTON, of Indiana, providing that the act should not be construed so as to validate the election of any person to an office under the United States Government who was, at the time of his election, ineligible by law. The amendment was rejected by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Ames, Anthony, Buckingham, Caldwell, Carpenter, Chandler, Clayton, Conkling, Corbett, Edmunds, Ferry of Michigan, Flanagan, Frelinghuysen, Hamlin, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Pease, Pomeroy, Pool, Pratt, Ramsey, Rice, Sawyer, Scott, Spencer, Sumner, Windom—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Alcorn, Bayard, Blair, Bowman, Cassedy, Cooper, Davis of Kentucky, Davis of West Virginia, Dennis, Ferry of Connecticut, Hamilton of Maryland, Hill, Hitchcock, Johnston, Kelloge, Kelly, Lewis, Logan, Norwood, Robertson, Saulsbury, Schurz, Sherman, Stevenson, Stockton, Thurman, Tipton, Trumbull, Vickers, West—28.

Mr. SUMNER'S amendment, the "Supplementary Civil Rights bill," then came up.

Mr. THURMAN, of Ohio, made the point that it was not in order, because it was a measure which, if it stood alone, could be passed by a majority vote, while the pending bill required a two-thirds vote.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, raised the point that the amendment was not in order because it was not an enactment of the approval of the President in order to become a law, whereas the Amnesty bill could become a law without the President's approval.

This point was discussed at length by Messrs. Trumbull, Carpenter of Wisconsin, Edmunds of Vermont, Conkling of New-York, Thurman of Ohio, and Davis of Kentucky.

Both points were over-ruled by the Chair.

Mr. SUMNER then addressed the Senate in favor of his amendment.

Mr. SAWYER, of South Carolina, opposed attaching it to this bill. The Amnesty bill was so important and urgent a measure of public policy that he did not want to have it embarrassed by any other measure, however meritorious in itself. He believed that the great mistake in the reconstruction of the Southern States was the imposition of any political disabilities, and it was due to that mistake that his State (South Carolina) had now a government which was a disgrace to the Republican Party and a scandal to the country before the civilized world. The Senator from Massachusetts, (Mr. SUMNER,) in his zeal for equal rights, was seeking to tack his amendment on to this bill, but the colored people of the South, if they could be heard, would themselves say to that Senator: "Give us amnesty first. We will be sure to get our rights sooner or later under your bill."

Mr. THURMAN, of Ohio, appealed from the decision of the Chair upon his point of order, and the decision was sustained—yeas 29, nays 24.

Mr. SUMNER'S amendment was then rejected by the following vote:

YEAS—Ames, Anthony, Brownlow, Buckingham, Caldwell, Carpenter, Chandler, Clayton, Conkling, Corbett, Edmunds, Ferry of Michigan, Flanagan, Frelinghuysen, Hamlin, Harlan, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Pease, Pomeroy, Pool, Pratt, Ramsey, Rice, Sawyer, Scott, Spencer, Sumner, Windom—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Alcorn, Bayard, Blair, Bowman, Cassedy, Cooper, Davis of Kentucky, Davis of West Virginia, Dennis, Ferry of Connecticut, Hamilton of Maryland, Hill, Hitchcock, Johnston, Kelloge, Kelly, Lewis, Logan, Norwood, Robertson, Saulsbury, Schurz, Sherman, Stevenson, Stockton, Thurman, Tipton, Trumbull, Vickers, West—28.

GIFTS FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

Further Lists of Attractive Goods—Furniture, Toys and Miscellaneous Articles at Low Figures.

This auspicious season of the year is chosen by many young couples as mating time. To such, who may be on the look-out for furniture for their prospective home, the Times would indicate some of the fine furniture-houses of the Metropolis.

E. L. SOLOMON & Sons have a superb store at Nos. 307 and 309 Broadway, a white marble structure which few eyes can view without admiration. It is a fitting exterior for the beautiful goods within. The stock of furniture embraces all that is most costly and luxurious in the trade; easy-chairs, that invite to slumber; bedsteads, inlaid with rare Arcadian woods and adorned with medallions of bronze in low relief; cabinets, precious with marquestry; desks of the most ingenious construction, some the perfection of desks and others nightmares. Besides the furniture, there is a superb assortment of rugs, damasks, and satins for furniture coverings, in all the newest styles, and a varied display of materials for curtains, whose only fault is that where there is so much to choose from choice becomes a task of real difficulty. Everything within the doors of the SOLOMONS is of the best quality, and to have purchased from them is equal to a guarantee elsewhere. They have materially reduced their prices and invite inspection.

Cabinet furniture of the finest kind at greatly reduced prices is offered by HOMMEDIEU & SOLMAN, manufacturers, No. 256 Broadway. They also furnish parlor, library and chamber suites of the newest styles in good fashion.

MERRIAM'S mirrors are of a great reputation. The store is at No. 301 Broadway, near Prince, and displays a superb assortment of gilt, rosewood, ebony, walnut and hall mirrors for the mantel and pier. The prices have been reduced until Jan. 1, when the old style will prevail again. Ladies who want such things will not forget that the last of December is on Sunday week.

H. L. SOUTHACK'S grand furniture establishment is at No. 760 Broadway. This gentleman manufactures his own wares, and makes a specialty of French cylinder and counting-house desks of every variety.

A very attractive stock of rich furniture made specially for the Holidays is offered for inspection by WM. H. LEE, of No. 207 Canal and No. 199 Fulton streets. It includes fancy and Turkish easy-chairs, pedestals, easels, jardiniere stands, and every style of handsome parlor furniture.

In Spring-street, WARREN, WARD & Co., manufacture every kind of furniture for town and country residence. They sell both wholesale and retail at Nos. 75 and 77 Spring-street, and offer great inducements at this season.

EDWARD BAXTER & Co., of Nos. 203 and 205 Canal-street, manufacture the medium qualities of furniture, such as walnut chamber suites, ranging from $75 to $200, and parlor suites from $150 to $600. They have opened their immense ware-rooms to retail business, and sell as good and as cheap an article as any house in the City, while the variety to choose from is infinitely greater.

In the matter of bedding and bedding furniture, house-keepers who are wise will inspect the stock of HEITMAN & MACK. They have contrived to manufacture an imitation walnut chamber suite, which with the bedding they sell for $60. The force of cheapness can no further go. They have also an excellent assortment of furniture generally. Their stores are at No. 216 Houston and No. 426 Sixth-avenue.

DUNSHEE & TAYLOR are the wholesale and retail furniture dealers of the Bowery, at Nos. 87 and 89. They have a splendid display of parlor, chamber and dining-room furniture, and they retail at wholesale prices. Their stock of carpets, oil-cloths, &c., is very extensive, and is sold at the lowest possible prices.

TOYS, &C.

We need scarcely recommend toys to the notice of our readers, but give the names of a few large dealers in these articles below:

ALTMAN, BENGMAN & Co. at their four large stores, Nos. 20 to 26 Park-place, offer an immense variety at retail for one week only.

STRAUSBURGER & FERRIZEN, No. 294 Broadway, show a splendid assortment of novelties recently imported from Europe.

LEWIS TIERNAY, No. 512 Broadway, makes a specialty of leaping-horses, velocipedes, swings and sleds.

At NICHOLS, LYONS & Co., No. 66 Chambers-street, offer a large assortment of toys and fancy goods at retail until Jan. 1.

At WILSON'S old stand, No. 73 Bowery, we are assured that toys can be purchased cheaper than ever.

For magic lanterns, microscopes, and optical instruments of all kinds, at reasonable prices, McALLISTER & Co., No. 49 Nassau-street, may be confidently recommended.

The celebrated New-York Club Skate, BARNEY & BUSHEE'S patent, can be purchased of PATTEN-SON BROS., No. 97 Park-row.

MISCELLANEOUS.

What can possibly be more gracious as a Holiday gift than one of PERRO'S chromos. They are familiar in our eyes as household words, and there is not a store that deals in art goods throughout the length and breadth of the country that does not display a glittering array of the delightful reproductions of famous pictures. Among so many that are excellent it is difficult to choose the best, but if we take into consideration the amount of labor required in perfecting each, we think place at the head of all his stock the "Family Scene in Pompeii," after the original of JOSEPH COGHLANS, of Brussels. In this work no less than forty-three stones were necessary, and the printing alone of each edition requires six months. Yet the price of this gem of chromo lithography is by no means large.

HOWE & DAVIDSON, of No. 636 Broadway, offer to the gift-giving public a magnificent assortment of Holiday and wedding presents in almost every kind of material. Their selection of bronzes is remarkably fine and includes many fanciful pieces illustrative of French history and mediæval costume, such as the Prendeur, Tristan l'Hermite, le Due Robert, Godefroi de Bouillon, &c. These articles in bold and ormolu are finely copper, and their bronze and gilt metal chandeliers have an immense reputation everywhere from their beautiful and elegant construction and their moderate price. In cut and engraved glassware this firm has long had a deservedly high standing, and they are said to have furnished most of the beautiful crystal chandeliers in the club-houses and leading stores of the City.

COLGATE, the soap and perfumery manufacturer, has invented a new scent for the season, which he calls the "Cashmere Bouquet." The name alone is a guarantee for the merit of the article.

PRIEL, of No. 2 John-street, is displaying a fine stock of fancy goods during the Holidays. People buying such things will do wrong to themselves if they pass him over.

MR. A. A. VANTINE is the well-known art connoisseur who is proprietor of a Japanese store. If a lady has a passion for the odd, the grotesque and the beautiful combined, she can hardly do better than visit the obliging MR. VANTINE and inspect his Chinese, Japanese and Hindoo goods.

Man's best gift to woman was the sewing-machine. A better Holiday present to a wife or a sister, or one nearer and dearer still, than a Wheeler & Wilson sewing-machine cannot be devised. Their reputation is too well established to need comment, and the prices are invariably to suit the times. The splendid depot is No. 695 Broadway.

All kinds of French clocks, bronzes and musical boxes can be obtained of ALEX. M. HAYS & Co., No. 36 Maiden-lane. There is also a fine branch store on Fifteenth-street and Union-square, where the collection of articles embraces all that is unique, costly and beautiful in this line. The price of the bronzes is remarkably moderate, considering how artistic and admirable they are. Of the French clocks, the collection is very extensive.

At BIRDS' millinery establishment, No. 647 Broadway, a fine assortment of ladies' furs is being sold at half price. The stock was obtained under peculiar circumstances at so low a sale as to enable this house to sell under wholesale prices. Ladies who want furs will wrong their pockets if they do not visit BIRDS' before going elsewhere.

What better present can a young man light to an old one than a handsomely-mounted walking-cane? COX'S SONS, No. 25 Maiden-lane, have a superb assortment of gold, silver and ivory mounted, which, during the Holiday season, they are disposing of very cheaply.

If ladies want bargains in fancy goods for Christmas gifts, let them pay a visit to TOWNS, MULVAIN & Co., No. 6 Maiden-lane, who have just received an attractive stock from London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, embracing albums, blotters, portfolios, writing desks, &c.

RAVEN & Co. are selling their new and improved grand scale pianos, direct from their manufactory, Nos. 149 and 151 Baxter-street. As they have no commissions to pay, they are enabled to deal very liberally with purchasers.

Very seasonable goods during this spell of ferocious cold are the skates sold by CHAS. S. LITTLE, of No. 19 Fulton-street. He has besides a fine assortment of sleigh-bells, pen and pocket cutlery, bowie knives, and other useful and ornamental articles in hardware.

GEORGE WITTER & Co., of No. 13 Maiden-lane, offer to the public a fine stock of jewelry, including the Marion watch, which its friends declare the best in the world. The display of articles suitable for Christmas presents is very varied and rich.

The billiard-table that excited the greatest amount of attention at the Institute Fair was the American billiard-table for $165, made of cross-grained composition. It is for sale at No. 680 Broadway.

SAMUEL, importer of musical fancy goods, No. 21 Murray-street, is selling at retail during the Holidays, and has on exhibition at very reduced prices a great variety of tempting articles. He has especially some musical surprise articles, inlaid work-boxes, gentlemen's cigar-cases, wine-bottles, &c., which, as soon as handled, burst into operatic airs. The wine-bottle commences to play as soon as the stopper is taken out. He has besides these an almost infinite supply of accordions, concertinas and mouth harmonicons, and every variety of musical-toys.

For French china and Holiday presents in that line we would advise our readers to take a look at the French Arcade, No. 243 Broadway, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. Here there is a choice display of all those pretty things which Paris turns out in bisque and porcelain. There are also choice toilet sets in glassware, gilt and colored, which are very elegant in shape and chaste in decoration. Their styles of exhibition are superior to anything seen elsewhere, and their majolica flower-pots are almost equal to those of British fabrication.

If a lady has a taste for embroidering and braiding, she cannot do better than purchase GROVER & BAKER'S splendid sewing-machine. The sales-rooms are at No. 495 Broadway and No. 344 Third-avenue, and during the Holiday season things are made particularly easy to purchasers.

W. S. DOBSON & Co., of London, have opened an establishment at No. 146 Fifth-avenue, where they are displaying such cut and engraved glass as has never been seen before in this country. The glass is immensely thick, and the designs are cut into it as in intaglios, the effect produced being that of a bold relief.

Following the good fashion, MESSRS. LAMPS & Co., of No. 99 Chambers and No. 75 Reade-street, wholesale importers, offer to sell at retail, until Saturday, their splendid assortment of French, German and English toys, their porcelain, their Parian marble, their glass-ware and their fancy goods. This chance will not be extended after Saturday.

Could we put to the vote the sentiments of champagne drinkers, we should assuredly find a large proportion of them in favor of the new brand called Napoleon's Cabinet. It is not too sweet, has a fine glow, without being fiery, an excellent flavor, and is mousseux, without getting into the nose. It is being introduced by BOUCHERIES & Co., No. 37 Beaver-street.

W. J. F. DAILEY'S store for porcelain and table furniture generally is at No. 631 Broadway. It is with great pleasure that we recommend ladies who desire such goods to pay him a visit. He will sell a white china dinner-set, worth $50, for $32; he will sell a colored and gilt dinner set, worth $120, for $80; he will sell a tea set of the same for $9; he will sell a set of ivory-handled dinner knives for $7 50. Such prices tell their own story. The quality of the articles is of the very highest, and no lady who ever purchased at DAILEY'S has failed to become a steady patron. Ladies, pray call on DAILEY.

Every one has seen or heard of BRADFORD'S picture, "Crushed by Icebergs," purchased by LEONARD LOCKWOOD for $15,000. The chrome of this fine picture is to be had at ARNOUX'S, No. 651 Broadway, opposite the Metropolitan. Here also can be obtained the wonderful graphoscope, a beautiful ornament for the drawing-room. It gives to the largest photographs a stereoscopic effect, presenting a roundness and relief which in photographs of stationary is little less than marvelous. The graphoscope has also a stereoscope attached to it. It is well worth inspecting and purchasing.

JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, of Union-square, are the agents for LEA & PERRIN'S Sauce, which is pronounced by connoisseurs as "the only good sauce." At the same establishment may be found an extensive and well-assorted selection of wines, liquors, choice groceries, foreign fruits and other delicacies, without a supply of which Christmas can hardly be considered as Christmas.

Those who desire to get up an appetite for Christmas fare we recommend to purchase a box of the Bell Schnapps from H. G. WOLFE & Co., No. 18 South William-street.

From WM. MAUCHEM & Co., Nos. 54 and 56 Broad-street, can be obtained the celebrated brands of champagne known as "Lac d'Or" and "Corne d'Or."

The "Dry Monopole" champagne of HEIDSIECK & Co., one of the most favorite brands in use on the Continent, is for sale at all the principal grocers and wine merchants.

MAILLARD, at his two establishments, No. 419 Broadway, and No. 60 East Fourteenth-street, offers an immense assortment of bonbons, chocolate, surprises, and envelopes for dinners, suppers and cotillions.

A good range is a necessity in the cooking of a good Christmas dinner. Such are BURNHAM ranges, which are offered at $35 each by JAMES & KIRTLAND, Nos. 4 to 12 Reade-street.

At LEWIS & CONGER'S, No. 601 Sixth-avenue and No. 1,302 Broadway, house-furnishing goods in immense variety, fine cutlery, kitchen furniture, crockery and cooking utensils may be obtained.

An immense stock of Bohemian glassware, French china, clocks, bronzes, vases, flower-stands, card-tables, &c., is on exhibition at CHARLES VOGT & Co.'s, Nos. 60 and 62 Murray-street.

The Doty clothes-washer and universal wringer, which is for sale at No. 32 Cortlandt-street, forms a sensible Holiday present.

FRANCIS & LOUTREL, No. 45 Maiden-lane, have now for sale their diary for 1872; also expense-books and stationery of all kinds.

For blank-books, stationery and printing, we recommend our readers to SLOTE & JANES, No. 25 Fulton-street.

Tobacco is generally acknowledged to taste better when smoked in a meerschaum pipe than in any other. Such pipes, with an immense assortment of amber goods, can be obtained of the very finest quality, at KALDENBERG'S, No. 6 Jean-street, or of POLLAK & SON, No. 27 John-street.

Christmas usually brings cold weather. Prepare for it by purchasing at ROSBRUCK BROTHERS', No. 33 Fulton-street, some of their improved weather-strips.

Christmas sometimes also brings burglars. HOLMES' burglar alarm telegraph (office No. 7 Murray-street) is a perfect preventive against the depredations of these "minions of the moon."

Revalenta Arabica Food, which has a high reputation as the cure of dyspepsia and kindred diseases, is offered for sale by DU BARRY & Co., No. 13 Dey-street.

Trusses, elastic belts, stockings, knee-caps and other useful and indispensable devices for the unfortunate are on sale in great variety by MARSH & Co., No. 25 East Fourteenth-street.

LOST CHILDREN.

The parents of the present day have one great advantage over those of the preceding generation. When they lose their children, they can go down to the Police Head-quarters about 7 o'clock in the evening with very comfortable assurances of finding the loved and lost. There are cases, of course, where the Moloch railways that devastate the upper part of the island, have mangled the little truants and whirled their bleeding bodies into Bellevue Hospital. But in the great majority of instances the missing ones will be found in the charge of the matron, placidly munching an apple and awaiting the arrival of distracted parents with an equanimity amounting almost to indifference. In the good old times not so very far distant, when young Jonathan was reported missing, the anguished mother had no other resource than to fee the bell-man. This worthy, generally a maimed veteran, got over the ground with crab-like slowness, and was generally attended by a crowd of mischievous urchins, who mimicked his announcements of "Lost, stolen or strayed." Gotham in those days was not very extensive, and it was just possible that the finder of a lost child might in a couple of days, through the intervention of the bell-man, make the acquaintance of the loser. But as the city increased in size, the present system of taking them to Police Head-quarters was adopted as an absolute necessity, and has been found to work admirably.

A reporter of the TIMES visited this peculiar institution on Sunday night, which is the great night for lost children. It is situated on the fourth story of the building in Mulberry-street. The children who arrive must be greatly terrified by the long succession of broad staircases, which must seem to their frightened imaginations never ending, something like the steps in nightmare dreams; and by the lofty walls, with their vast expanses of white-wash. The rooms of the depot are comfortable and cheery enough. The floor is uncarpeted pine, but it is extremely clean. The chairs are of wood, painted white, but there is a comfortable looking stove, a neat little cradle, and two little beds. Superintending the arrivals is a matronly old lady with two attractive daughters. To her the reporter made request that he might sit and watch the entrances and exits of these little players, who commence life by getting lost. The wish was very kindly granted, the matron sat down at her desk, and the reporter took one of the white painted chairs in eager expectation of approaching incidents. Fifteen minutes elapsed before any one came, and the first arrival was a little girl about four years old. She was perfectly silent, neither sobbed nor shed tears, but regarded the room and its inmates with large black eyes. Inquiries were pointed upon her in English, French and Italian, as she was thought at first to be a little Italian flower-girl from Baxter-street, having a white handkerchief tied over her head something in the fashion of sunny Italy. But though the gassed inquiringly and piteously at everybody, there was no gleam of intelligence in her looks. The matron gave her a large slice of bread and butter, which she regarded attentively, first on one side and then on the other, the butter seeming to be a novelty in her experience. When she thought she was unnoticed, she furtively smelled, and then licked the new substance with her little red tongue, and, seeming dissatisfied, rejected the food altogether. Some one tried her then with a few words of German, and her face lighted up with intelligence, but she did not speak. She looked anxiously at the questioner, but her lips remained motionless. The German at the command of the persons present being very limited, she was tried again with the same question, and there came again a flash of intelligence over her dark-eyed features, but no words. She was then abandoned as a hopeless enigma, not to be solved until somebody came for her. This was not very long, for soon there was a step on the stairs, which she evidently recognized, for she became all attention. The door opened, and a great stout German Jew entered, who, as soon as he set eyes on her, called out "RACHEL." The child had jumped off her chair, and was holding his big hand by both her tiny ones, evidently in a high state of delight, but yet she did not speak. The matron questioned the man, who was fondling her hair with one big hand, while the other was tightly grasped by the little thing. He touched his tongue. "Mine little girl is mute," said he; "she have her hearing, but not speech. Mine little RACHEL!" and he took her right up in his arms, pressed her to his breast, and walked off with his happy burden. While he was departing, a policeman came in with a little Irish boy about seven years of age, with a bruised and bleeding face, in rags, dirty, and a lamentable figure generally. "Who is this?" said the matron. "His name is PADDY WOOLAN, and he doesn't quite know where he lives," replied the policeman. "His father and mother are having a drunken spree in the house, have beat each other and the children, and driven them out of the house. I found him running, out of breath, and paying with fear and fatigue, and I've brought him up here." The matron nodded with a sort of troubled look, wiped his eyes, presented him with the piece of bread and butter which the little Jew girl had rejected, and gave him a cup of tea. This treatment abated the violence of his grief, and though he sobbed a little as he munched, yet the sea of his emotion was evidently going down. "Are there many such cases?" inquired the reporter. "Too many, only too many," she answered; "half the Irish children who are lost have in reality been driven out by one parent or the other in a burst of drunken fury. In two or three days they will come for him, pretending the deepest grief, but I shall see the boy watch their hands as if expecting a blow, and ready to dodge it." The world little knows what the children of the Irish have to endure in their miserable homes, and how the parents, by their vices, perpetuate in their offspring those defects of character which men have been too apt to ascribe to the tyranny of English rule.

While PADDY was munching, in came another policeman with a little negro boy, apparently from seven to eight years of age. The matron said to him, "Why, how do you come to be lost? you look spry enough." "Ain't been in de place more nor a fotenight, Missus," said the woolly-headed urchin; "long to Petersburg, way down in Virginney." "Oh! you do? well, sir, and what's your name?" "Name's ROBERT Lee, Missus, and I lives with Aunt DINAH, is mammy's dead." "Well, where does Aunt DINAH live?" Before the boy could answer, two very neatly-dressed colored women came into the room and immediately commenced to load him with reproaches. "Oh! you bad boy; what'll I do with yer when I gets yer home!" BOBBY grinned as if he was not particularly afraid of anything very bad, and was marched off triumphantly, after explaining to the matron that it was the first fustest time he had come out of de house, and he had just crossed over de way, when his head turned round, and he clar forgit where he was." By this time PADDY DOOLAN had finished his supper, and was walked off for a wash, after which he returned, looking very clean and pretty, and was inducted into peaceable possession of one of the cots, where he soon fell asleep.

There was now a cessation for some fifteen minutes, and then two arrivals came together. One was a little Irish girl whose parents had been waiting for her down-stairs, and who came to have her name inscribed according to the regulations. The other was a little boy who held fast hold of the policeman's hand, and was introduced as having been found on Nineteenth-street and Avenue B. He was about two years and six months old, and was very nicely dressed. He had blue, big eyes, an amazing mass of flaxen curls, and a very fair complexion. He had dressed himself to go out with his mamma, for his hat was of blue velvet with a little white feather, and he wore over his tartan dress a thick, white flannel cape, prettily embroidered. He looked around with considerable surprise, but when the policeman who had brought him in, disengaged his hand, and, bent on business, turned to the door, he was after him with a roar of anguish, crying "mamma!" with all the force of his lungs. It was evident that the policeman had won his entire confidence by promising to take him to his mamma, and he regarded this as a base betrayal of his trusting nature, resenting it accordingly. He was pacified by the matron, who resorted to the same artifice, but when she attempted to remove his cap and his cape, he made a vigorous struggle as if dimly conscious that she had no vested right to remove his apparel. A piece of bread and butter was then introduced, but he took no notice of it. His face went to set sober wisely, and he was evidently pondering his baby brains for a solution of the mysterious forms and strange furniture by which he was surrounded. Failing in this endeavor, his mouth relaxed, and he bleated out like a pere-outed lamb, his one cry, "mamma!" at regular intervals, until his eyes rolled in his head with weariness, and he consented to be put to bed. But first he gathered his mittens, his cape and his cap, and rolled them into a bundle, crushing the feather dreadfully in the operation. This he clasped tightly to his bosom and went to sleep guarding it faithfully.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Presentment by the Grand Inquest—Essex Market and Jefferson Market "Prison Pens" a Public Disgrace—Brutality to Prisoners—Ludlow-Street Jail and the Lunatic Asylums.

The Grand Jury of the Court of Over and Terminer came into Court during its session yesterday, and handed to Judge INGRAHAM, presiding, the following important presentment:

GRAND JURY ROOM, }
NEW-YORK, Dec. 21, 1871. }

Hon. Daniel P. Ingraham, Justice of the Court of Over and Terminer:

The Grand Inquest in and for the City and County of New-York having carefully inspected the various prisons in and about the City, respectfully report that they find the Penitentiary, Almshouse and Hospitals on Blackwell's Island in perfect order. The Lunatic Asylums are also in good condition, with the exception of the building known as the "Lodge" in which the more dangerous lunatics are confined. This structure is very old, much out of repair, and is unfit for the purpose to which it is devoted. There is at present (1,700 inmates on the Island, and the accommodation for them is entirely inadequate. This will be overcome to a certain extent by the new Insane Asylum, which is now finished on Ward's Island, to which place about 500 patients will shortly be removed. This is probably the finest and most complete institution of its kind in the country. The "Southside Home," on Ward's Island, devoted to the care of disabled soldiers of New-York regiments, is exceedingly well managed, and affords a comfortable resting-place for those brave men who have lost limbs and almost their lives in the country's defence.

The Grand Inquest find the "Prison Pen" of Essex Market Police Court, disgraceful to a civilized community. In a badly ventilated room, about ten feet by fifteen, prisoners of both sexes, numbering from forty to seventy, are daily confined, irrespective of the charge for which they are arrested, frequently being subjected to violation of a City ordinance of the most infamous of crimes. The room in which prisoners are confined at Jefferson Market Police Court is subject to the same condemnation. In cold weather it is a perfect "ice-box" where prisoners of both sexes, young and old, innocent and guilty, are huddled together. There is no stove in the room, nor is there any means of heating it. The bridge and staircase over which prisoners are conducted from the Court-room to the Prison is in a dilapidated and unsafe condition.

The Grand Inquest most earnestly protest against the practice of confining young children, arrested for some trivial offence, in the same apartment with the most depraved and abandoned characters. They also have reason to suspect that in many cases prisoners brought to the various police stations are cruelly and unlawfully beaten in a manner by the officers having them in charge. Ludlow-street Jail was found in a healthy and cleanly condition, the prison fare of abundant and superior quality. There were no complaints from the prisoners, except in regard to the harshness of the law which deprives them of their liberty. There are about ninety unfortunates in this institution, the majority of whom are imprisoned for debt, large sums of them were recently discharged by His Honor Judge BARNARD, but the Sheriff would not take the responsibility of their liberation, as he did not recognise the jurisdiction of the Court. The Grand Inquest are convinced that the inability of the prisoners to support their families during their incarceration is the cause of much suffering. The Grand Inquest are convinced that the policy of imprisonment for debt is unwise and reprehensible in more than one degree. The City Prison was found in excellent order, and seems to be well managed. The Twenty-eighth Precinct Station-house is in bad condition, very unfit for the purpose for which it is used. It is a disgrace to the City. The Grand Inquest find the number of men on the Police force entirely inadequate to the service required of them. In almost all the precincts the patrolmen have charges more than one post. The entire Police force of the City is only 2,100 men, while it should be at least 3,000.

The chief difficulty in the proper working of all the Departments seems to be the lack of funds. This, of course, is very unfortunate, and will not obtain to come until the proper appropriations are made. The Department of Public Charities and Correction, although most prudently managed, is largely in arrears. This difficulty is, year after year, thrown upon the Courts in the employees and members of the Police Department have been obliged to subscribe the money to buy coal for the purpose of warming the Court-rooms. The Grand Inquest do not feel strongly enough upon the practice of driving cattle through the streets of the City during the hours they are occupied by citizens. This has frequently been the cause of loss of life and limb, and should be prohibited by law.

The Fourth-Avenue Railroad—The Mayor Vetoes the Resolutions of the Common Council.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Mayor sent the following message to the Board of Aldermen:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Dec. 21, 1871.

To the Common Council:

I herewith return, without my approval, the resolutions for improving the condition of Fourth-avenue in response to the petition of the Madam Railroad Company," adopted by the Board of Aldermen on the 18th inst., and by the Board of Assistant Aldermen on the 19th inst. It does not become necessary to consider the advantages or disadvantages, nor the policy or impolicy of these resolutions, because I have reached the conclusion that the Common Council does not possess legal power to authorize or direct many of the acts contemplated in the resolutions, but that such power exclusively belongs to the Legislature.

The resolutions also provide: "The work herein mentioned and such as may be necessary to carry out the object of this resolution, to be done by the New-York and Harlem Railroad Company, to be approved by the Engineer of the Department of Public Works, and one-half of the cost of said work to be borne by the said railroad company and the other half to be borne by the City and the same to be done by the City so far as said as the work progresses," &c.

This is distinctly in contravention of section 12 of the Charter, which reads as follows:

"The Common Council shall have no power to incur any debt or liability on behalf of the City, to contract debts, or loan the credit of the City, unless specially authorized so to do by act of the Legislature, and all the legislative power of the City shall be subordinate to and be exercised in conformity with all special grants, restrictions or limitations, as are now or hereafter may be prescribed by the Legislature."

The resolutions also, in contemplating an alteration of the grades of Fourth-avenue, violate chapter 83, section 2, of laws of 1854, respecting public lots of land, as well as regarding consent of owners. The resolutions also contemplate expenditure of money for which no appropriation has been made, and this is also in violation of the Charter. (Section 39 of Charter.) The resolutions also contemplate building street bridges, which, as was decided heretofore in the Broadway Bridge case, is beyond the power of the Common Council.

I therefore return these resolutions with the foregoing objections. It has lately become apparent that both the Railway Company in question and the public need legislation upon the subject of all of the matters embraced by these resolutions. Upon the one hand, the Company confers enormous advantages upon the commerce of New-York, and upon the other hand, the necessary use of City streets by the railway carries perils and endangers property and person. Undoubtedly, a legislative session approaches, at which prompt relief can be had in this matter. These resolutions may serve, however, in their inchoate shape, as a memorial from the Common Council to the Legislature. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor, &c.

The communication was laid over, and the Board adjourned to Tuesday next.

The Committee of Ninety—Appointment of Subcommittees.

The Committee of Ninety, appointed at Brevoort Hall on Wednesday night, met yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. JOHN FOLEY presided.

Mr. JOHN DALY said the object of the Committee was to examine all feasible schemes for transit, and seek by legislation to coalesce the different charters already existing. He moved that a Subcommittee of Ten be appointed to consider the special subject of railroads and the improvement of Fourth-avenue. The motion was carried.

Mr. W. VAIN moved that a committee of ten be appointed on City horse-car railroads. He made some remarks on the subject of the Fourth-avenue Railroad, and spoke in favor of an underground railroad.

Mr. DALY said there had been no preferences. There were several engineers on the Committee, and when the subcommittees are appointed, the subjects will come up in order before them.

In response to an inquiry, the Chairman said he understood the Committee on Railroads had the whole subject of rapid transit before them, both for the present and future.

The following Committees were appointed:

Committee on Railroads—Louis P. Brown, A. Dowling, W. F. Havemeyer, J. H. Strahan, A. H. Barney, J. E. Develin, R. C. Root, R. W. Townsend, Edward Mathews.

Committee on Finance—Lewis Ballard, M. M. Dale, C. F. Simpson, Henry Clews, Ed. Mathews, J. F. Harrison, R. M. Taylor, M. Hoes, Francis Tomes, Hiram Barney.

Committee on Laws and Ordinances—John McDonald, Robert Townsend, Hiram Barney, Edgar F. Brown.

The Chair said the Committee on Horse-car Railroads would be announced at a future meeting.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Dock Commissioners—Funds Wanted.

The Commissioners of Docks met yesterday, Mr. AGNEW in the chair. All the Commissioners were present, except Mr. SMITH.

Commissioner WOOD submitted a report from the Auditing Committee, by which it appeared that $300,000 had been received from the Controller during the month of November, and that after payment of all expenses the balance on hand Nov. 30, was $45,311 22.

A resolution previously passed to build a bulk-head between Piers Nos. 36 and 37 North River, was rescinded, as the Superintendent considered it more advisable to extend the platform. The resolution of July 27, to erect a pier at the foot of Thirtieth-street, East River, was rescinded.

Mr. AGNEW said, that although the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund had issued an authorisation for $1,000,000 in favor of the Department, the Controller had not yet issued bonds for that amount.

REFORM IN ENGLAND.

The Birmingham Conference on the Re-tended Changes in the House of Lords.

From the Pall Mall Gazette, Dec. 6.

The Birmingham Conference on the reform of the House of Lords began this morning in the Masonic Hall, New-street, at 12 o'clock. Mr. J. S. WRIGHT, President of the Birmingham Liberal Association, was in the chair, and the following resolutions were agreed to:

Moved by Mr. GEORGE DIXON, M. P., seconded by Mr. J. D. LEWIS, M. P.: "That the hereditary principle in legislation is unwise, since it neither assures wisdom in the individual nor patriotism in the body; and is unjust, since it confers upon a class powers which ought to be exercised only by representatives of the nation."

Moved by Mr. P. H. MUNTZ, M. P., seconded by Dr. SANDWITH, C. B., Lincoln: "That in a free country, the ultimate decision upon all questions of government or of the policy of the State must rest with representatives elected by the majority of the people, and that some plan should be adopted in this nation to give constitutional effect to that decision."

Moved by Dr. PANKHURST, Manchester, seconded by Mr. J. C. COX, J. P., Belper: "That no right to legislate on the affairs of the nation ought to be conferred in consequence of any theological opinions, or of connection with any ecclesiastical establishment, and, therefore, that the legislative power of the bishops of the English Church should be abolished."

From the Pall Mall Gazette, Dec. 7.

The resolutions adopted at the Birmingham Conference, held yesterday, to bring about a reform of the House of Lords, were published last evening. From the full reports which have since come to hand, it appears that although a considerable number of members of Parliament sent excuses for absence, there were only present of the members of the Lower House, Mr. DIXON, Mr. J. D. LEWIS, and Mr. MUNTZ. Mr. DIXON, who was the first member of the House of Commons to speak, declined at the outset to enter into details. He did not believe the House, and also said that he wished to say as little as possible of the personal merits of the Lords, who, as far as he knew them, were neither much better nor much worse than the rest of their fellow-countrymen. With regard to the 225 Lords who voted against the abolition of purchase, Mr. DIXON asked: Supposing the Upper Chamber had been elected instead of hereditary, how many of the 225 Lords would have been sitting in the House at the time? In all probability not more than from 50 to 100. The honorable member asked further: Had it ever been submitted to the vote of this country whether we should have an hereditary Legislative Chamber? Would the House of Lords be content to submit to eliminate themselves? If so, he did not say what might be the case in the country districts, where house-holders were recipients of the bounty of these Lords; but in large towns, removed from that personal and pecuniary influence, he believed he knew in which way the vote would be given. Mr. DIXON proposed to give the Lords (and which they now possessed) the right to vote by proxy on all questions, but to withdraw from them the legislative supremacy power, with a limitation placed upon it, however. He did not talk of members of the Upper House should be appointed by the Minister of the day, or directly chosen by the people. A select committee should be chosen by both parties in the House of Commons to discharge this duty; and the delicate question then they would have existing these Peers who possessed fitness for the post and who desired to take it. He had no doubt that some of the nobility who were young and active would prefer to occupy seats in the Lower House, and as was of opinion that liberty of choice should be given them.

Mr. GEORGE POTTER, who followed Mr. DIXON, was of opinion that if the Lords should again reject any popular measure the Government should do the same as in the case of army purchase—carry the bill by the Queen's prerogative in spite of the Upper House.

Mr. MUNTZ, M. P., hoped he should never live to see the country governed by a single Chamber. He could not accept proposals of reform without approving any and considered for the observation that if the Committee could lay before the country a plan which, without destroying the existing Constitution, would promote harmony between both Houses, they would deserve the thanks of the country.

The necessity of a second Chamber was also maintained by Mr. HUGHES, of Nottingham. A second House seemed to him, to be needful for the defense of the people themselves, seeing that it was possible they might be led by some violent person or captious leader with interested motives to cry for measures which in their more reasonable moments they would regret.

At the public meeting held in the evening, Mr. AUBERON HERBERT was present, and made the first speech after the chairman, Sir CHARLES DILKE, also spoke. It is stated that the rising of the member for Chelsea was the signal for a hostile demonstration, which was continued with more or less intensity for nearly half an hour. No sooner had Sir CHARLES opened his mouth than the minority shouted and roared in the most frightful manner. There were cries of "Turn them out!" from every part of the room, and several disturbers of the peace were summarily ejected. Again Sir CHARLES attempted to speak, and again had to sit down. Standing patiently for some minutes he awaited a lull, and when there was one he uttered a few words, which were drowned by the roars of the disaffected, and an individual on the platform and another in the gallery swore at once thrust out of the hall by force. The chairman begged for quiet, but in vain, for order. Pepper was sprinkled about, "much to every one's discomfort." Sir CHARLES, in the course of his speech, expressed the opinion that the House of Lords had received a most dangerous accession to the ranks of what might be called its dangerous members, when Lord CRANBORNE became Lord SALISBURY; and if anybody could make a collision with the Commons, he was the man. As to the suggestion of life peerages, he said the power of creating them in large numbers would be putting into the hands of Ministers a dangerous power over the deliberations of the Lower House. On the other hand, to create them in small numbers would be no practical change at all. If Mr. GLADSTONE, who had created Lords, did two or three years ago, names of distinction, such, for instance, as Mr. JOHN STUART MILL, no doubt they might make a case to show that the creation of life Peerages would improve the character of the Upper House. At the same time it might be doubted if such men would be willing to accept Peerages. Mr. MILNER GIBSON, sitting on Lord Blachmouth, or by some other title derived from land. They would be sure to have the second-rate clerks of second-rate offices thrust into the House by the act of the Ministry of the day, and they would be looked down upon by their hereditary colleagues, and designated as short-time convicts—convicts set on sentence for life. Many people suggested a limitation of the powers of veto possessed by the Upper House, and he would say that if they were not prepared to abolish the hereditary House, they might limit the questions upon which it was allowed to interfere with the working of the popular will. Sir CHARLES, however, agreed with Mr. HERBERT in doubting whether it was necessary to have a second House at all. This "doubt" was received with loud cheers.

English Congratulations to the United States.

The London Times prefaces its reference to the President's Message by the words following: "The rulers of the world are meeting their Parliaments, and President GRANT may, perhaps, boast that the circumstances under which he addresses the Legislature of the United States are the happiest of all. The Emperor of Germany congratulates the representatives of the general Kingdom last week on the position Prussia had attained, but one-half of his speech was occupied with an argument upon the necessity of being forearmed against future dangers. VICTOR EMMANUEL enjoyed a higher and rarer felicity when he told the Senators and Deputies of Italy assembled together in their new hall on the Piazza di Monte Citorio, that the work to which he and kept had consecrated their lives was accomplished, yet he could not but remember that there were irreconcilable enemies in Rome itself, and that still more fanatical adherents of the Holy Father were to be found abroad chafing because their Governments would not take steps to prohibit the Italian occupation of Rome. It would be cruel to compare the immense anticipations M. THIERS must entertain of the future with the secure prosperity of Washington. Gen. GRANT may look at home and abroad, and find no ground for apprehension. Peace is within the borders of the United States is without. Peace and prosperity, and a reconciliation of the last differences which disturbed the relations of the Republic. Six years have served to extinguish the passions of civil discord, and there does not exist in the States at this hour anything more serious than the constitutional rivalry of political parties. The Treaty of Washington has provided for a friendly settlement of the long-standing dispute with ourselves, and President GRANT expresses a hope—perhaps more easily formed at Washington than in our nearer proximity to the Continent—that the example thus set of referring to arbitration an international difference may be followed, so as to restore to productive industry millions of men now engaged in training and preparations for war. Lastly, the trade of the Union is prosperous; its revenue is abundant and super-abundant, and the President is able to suggest that the tariff may be simplified and reduced and a large number of internal taxes dispensed with, leaving a surplus to be applied in reducing the debt of the nation. President GRANT is fortunate in the external circumstances of the Republic, fortunate as respects its internal condition, fortunate, also, as we have lately had occasion to remark, in his own person, in being able to look forward with something like moral certainty to his re-election as President. The nation approves his past conduct of their affairs, and is prepared to accept his guidance in the future. The compos

The bitter weather we have had during the past few days ought to indnce everybody who has a little money to spare to think of the homeless poor. It is bad enough to endure the cold in the day time, but it is difficult to estimate the amount of suffering which goes on in the streets of our City during the night. Journalists and policemen, who are out at all hours, see more than most people of the dark side of life—and it is enough to move a heart of stone to see the poor children who crowd into doorways and cart-sheds for shelter from the ramping wind. Institutions for the relief of the deserving poor stand urgently in need of help at the present time. We appeal to our readers to stretch forth their hands and give this help. The Five Points Houses of Industry, and many other excellent charities, sadly need this assistance. We specially appeal to the public on behalf of the Children's Aid Society, which we know does an immense amount of good, and is capable of doing still more if it only had the means. The Tammany gang robbed it of thirty thousand dollars this year—the most cruel of all their robberies—and it is consequently unusually poor. Let any of our readers go and visit one of the institutions belonging to this Society, and they will see for themselves how much good even a few dollars may do. A warm meal for the poor starving children can be provided for about five cents a head—a school of one hundred could have a comfortable dinner for five dollars. The Society has many schools, and every trifle which is sent to the Secretary, at No. 19 East Fourth-street, is sure to be well bestowed. There is no fear of your money—be it five cents or five dollars—being misapplied. Shall we appeal in vain in behalf of such a cause?

We publish today a few quotations from other journals illustrative of the spirit in which Mr. SCHURZ's attempt to get another "hole-and-corner" committee, modeled on the one which Senator PATTERSON brought over to New-York, is regarded by the independent Press. The move was unquestionably a wily one—seeing that SCHURZ and FENTON were engaged in it, it was pretty safe to be that—but the truth about it is now pretty generally understood. The journals which are pledged to oppose the President through thick and thin will not be satisfied; but the people do not much care whether they are satisfied or not. They know that papers like the Sun and the Nation will not hesitate to trump up all sorts of slanders about the Administration, and therefore what they have to say counts for very little.

We give, in another column, an instructive insight into a few of the mysteries of the late Department of Parks. This will enable the public to understand that in their capacity of City gardeners, SWEENY, HILTON and FIELDS were almost as expensive luxuries as TWEED himself. Such revelations help to explain the exceeding tenacity with which TWEED clings to the control of his still more rotten Department. That worthy has, doubtless, been chiefly occupied of late in covering up the tracks of the multiplied swindles of the Department of Public Works. It is a monstrous shame that such an outrage on the public should be possible, but the inner record of the Department of Parks will help people to appreciate how very desirable it is—for TWEED. After having mastered our figures, perhaps the World may be induced to take up again the brief for the King it held in August last, and declare, to its own satisfaction, that now, as then, it ends that the cost of Central Park "is grossly in excess of the cost of improving any of the smaller City parks and places."

Congress adjourned yesterday for its holiday vacation. The work accomplished thus far has been very slight, much less than it might have been had not the time of the Senate been occupied so largely by the manœuvres of those of its members who think it more important to prevent the renomination of President GRANT than to attend to the interests of the country. The House, which had already, in the Spring session, sent to the Senate a General Amnesty bill, has paid more attention to business and less to President making. It has succeeded in passing a Reapportionment bill, and a bill providing for investigation of the labor question. Neither of these bills has been acted on by the Senate, and that body adjourned yesterday without coming to a vote on the Amnesty measure. Mr. SUMNER finally brought forth his proposed one-term amendment, and preceded it by a solemn political oration in the form of a preamble. Mr. SUMNER is of course sincere in asserting that the people demand the change which he proposes, and which he says so many leaders of political opinion have indorsed, but has it never struck him as odd that a measure which "all statesmen approve, and the people desire," has never passed even to the first stages of a constitutional amendment? The fact is that that question was more ably argued in the Convention of '68 than it can very easily be now, and settled too completely for Mr. SUMNER and Mr. GREELEY combined to be able at this time to disturb the settlement.

Can We Trust Them?

One of the really comic features of the opposition to the Administration is the humble appeal which the members of it make every now and then for "fair play." These worthy persons sit down and invent lies all day long about Gen. GRANT; they abuse him and everybody connected with him to their hearts' content; they gather up every fragment of idle gossip, and retail it to the world as truth; it is part of their business to defame any man or any journal which takes the unwarrantable liberty in a free country of defending the Government against slanderers. In this kind of work a daily Republican paper of this City takes the lead, and a weekly paper brings up the rear. We believe most people will admit that the President has gone through a hot fire of abuse lately. The Nation, which is never happy except when it is snapping and snarling at him, now coolly turns about and complains that the President's defamers are very much ill used, and says all they ask is that they shall be protected from "imputations on their honesty, and purity, and political soundness." Poor, ill-used creatures! They are at liberty to deal in slander by wholesale and retail, but you must not say a word about their own claims to the respect of their fellow citizens. Is not their case a very hard one?

Look at the last assault made upon the Administration. It was a sharp trick to transfer the cause of civil service reform from the hands of the President into the hands of those spotless politicians, SCHURZ, TIPTON and FENTON. We said at the time, and we say again, that if the nominations to office which these Senators have made could be laid bare to the public gaze, they would stand disgraced before the people. This, the weekly doctrinaire paper already referred to, says is a "threat." It adds, in effect, "We who oppose the Administration may slander when and whom we please; but you, on the other side, must not even be allowed to tell the truth." Nevertheless, it is a fact that Senator SCHURZ has made about as many nominations to office as any man who has been an equal time in the Senate, and it is only because he did not get offices enough that he quarreled with the President. Senator TIPTON is in the same boat. He, being of a less cunning nature than SCHURZ, frankly admitted the cause of his grievance in the Senate the other day. Listen to this ardent reformer's own words—and to prevent all risk of misrepresentation we will quote literally from the report in the Globe. Pray do not skip this quotation, but read it through:

"Mr. President, on this subject of the patronage being prostituted to the benefit of a party, I have some experience. I have helped, heretofore, to give direction to public patronage. When my first colleagues and myself came here as Senators, we found Republicans in office all over the State of Nebraska, and though they were the appointees of ANDREW JOHNSON, they were our fellow-Republicans, losing no part of the confidence of the people because they held the offices. We thought we must have the patronage, and that, let it come from what source it might, we needed the patronage. We were out of the material that the boy was in pursuit of when he declared that he had an appetite and there was great destitution in the family larder, and therefore we, ourselves, when we came to the Senate, had to see to turning out all the Republican officers in our State."

All this is very plain, but now hear Senator TIPTON explain his direct cause of complaint against the President:

"I was told on Pennsylvania-avenue, 'You have been reported to head-quarters, and you will be discarded in the distribution of patronage.' I have not yet recovered from that charge; I am not yet extricated from that position. I understand how party power is exerted in this land when there is a degree of independence that becomes offensive to men in here called positions."

Here you see the whole trouble. Senator TIPTON does not care much about the alleged corruptions in the public service; but he feels very sore that more of the patronage does not fall into his hands.

Senator TRUMBULL is a man of much greater ability and fairness, and when the President's Message to the Senate, accompanying the Civil Service report, was sent in, Mr. TRUMBULL had the candor to say, "I am very much gratified at the communication from the President, and am very anxious to see action." Senator SUMNER, in a similar spirit, remarked, "I must say that I hail that communication of the President with joy." But not a word came from Senators SCHURZ, TIPTON or FENTON. They did not want Civil Service reform. Their only desire was to make a "point" against the President, and his instant assent to the recommendations of Mr. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS and his fellow Commissioners was most unwelcome to them. SCHURZ freely said to these Commissioners, more than once, "you may as well put your report into the fire, for the President will only suppress it." The wish was father to the thought. Once more we ask, which are the people most inclined to trust on this subject, Gen. GRANT, who has always treated them with good faith, or disappointed office-seekers and political tricksters, like SCHURZ, FENTON and TIPTON?

The Great Reform.

We publish this morning the substance of the explanation given by the Civil Service Commission, of the rules the President has ordered to go into operation on New-Year's Day. The thoroughness of the system which the President has introduced will be seen by any one who will read what the Commissioners say of it. Gen. GRANT has done precisely what true Reformers all desired he should do; he has appointed an intelligent Commission; they have carefully reported, and the President has not only recommended their report to Congress, but engaged to carry out their recommendations himself, so far as he has the power. This he does in the face of a warm political campaign approaching, when hitherto the corrupt practice has been for the aspirant for the Presidency to make use of all his official patronage to advance his claims. What more would the reformers have? It is objected that the President is not heartily and morally engaged in this reform, and that his conversion to it is late; that his message is merely a bid for office. To this we can only reply, that the state of the President's heart on this great question is not a matter of importance to the country; his action is right, and certainly this is the first instance in our history in which a President has bid for continuance in office by resigning all power over the great proportion of offices.

We shall hope for many such ambitious efforts, if the nation advance in reform. The President is, indeed, late in this reform, but so are the people. He is still in advance of the masses, and far ahead of the politicians. No language can adequately portray the depth and extent of this great reform, if the recommendations of the Commissioners be carried out.

The great fact which will appear when the new state of things is inaugurated, will be that office is for the people, not for its holders. A man is no longer appointed Postmaster, or Collector, or Naval Officer, or Clerk, or Indian Agent, or Internal Revenue Collector, or for any other minor governmental position, as a reward for his political views or his partisan services. He is chosen, just as the New-York Central Railroad, or as Mr. STEWART, chooses a clerk,—because he is found fitted to do his work. If his business is to be the sorting of letters in the New-York Post-office, he is not appointed because he advocated the Kuklux bill, but because he reads writing easily, is intelligent and honest, and fit for the place. If his work is to be appraising goods in the Custom-house, he is not chosen because he adheres to the Fenton faction, but because he shows to experts his familiarity with the valuation of merchandise, and because he is ascertained to be an honest, respectable, and sufficiently educated man. Everywhere the effort will be, under this system, to fill the public offices of the country with men adapted to do the public work.

The applicants for entry in the public service must begin, as do those in private business, in the lowest grades; they will be examined by a Board of Examiners, appointed by the President, and under the supervision of the general commission, and subject to their rules. The examination will be public and competitive, so that many of the most industrious and able of our young men, who have been hitherto kept from public duties by their indifference to mere partisan interests, will now be secured for the public service. The conditions of admission will relate to ability, character, physical strength, and the special qualifications for the particular office. The Board of Examiners will then select the three highest candidates, who have passed these tests, and the President, or whoever is the appointing power, must choose from these three. If a vacancy at any time occur in the higher grades of a department, those filling lower grades will have the first privilege of admission, under competitive examinations. There will thus be a constant opportunity presented for every office-holder to rise in the world, by doing his duty, and being prepared for a test of his qualifications. If, however, the lower grades are found incompetent, the higher offices thus made vacant will be thrown open to general competitive examination.

An excellent feature of the new law will be the probationary character during six months, of all public officials thus chosen. There will be, then, opportunity for the heads of each Department to test the efficiency of their employes, and, if dissatisfied, to secure through the Board of Examiners the presentation of new candidates. Care is also wisely taken of old and faithful servants who have been somewhat broken down in the public service, by placing them in positions of inferior responsibility. Under this proposed system, the civil service becomes a profession like any other great employment. Its members obtain positions and advance themselves, as they do in private life, not by political influence, but through their characters and abilities. They have every motive to do their work well and efficiently. The whole machinery of the nation will run more smoothly. Moreover, one deep source of public corruption will be removed. And this, be it remembered, not because competitive examinations necessarily present the best men for offices, but because men are appointed thus for public work from supposed qualifications, and not from partisan or personal reasons.

A Refuge for Invalid Politicians.

The singular maladies which have, since the election, attacked such prominent politicians as PETER B. SWEENY, JAMES M. SWEENY, HUGH SMITH, and others of the Ring whose "palatial" residences now know them no more, present a new mystery in medical science, and ought to command an investigation from our physicians, if not from our executive authorities.

That these well-known men, apparently enjoying the rudest health, should become so suddenly infirm as to be compelled to abandon everything, and leave the State so precipitously as even to expose themselves to the jeers of a suspicious and malignant Press, was startling. But the remedy they pursued was still more strange.

Ordinarily at this inclement season, the invalid whose shattered frame requires change of air is ordered to a milder clime. The hot springs of Virginia and Arkansas, the orange-groves of Florida, are frequently recommended; but who ever heard of a sick man being sent to Canada for his health, when the thermometer at New-York stood below zero? Yet even the illustrious PETER B., when his health gave way (about the time of the recent arrests), could find no relief but in watching the mercury freeze across the Canadian frontier. Is not this a case for Mr. BENNET? Or can it possibly be that the peculiar language of the Extradition Treaty existing between the United States and Canada, which protects such criminals as are charged with fraud or embezzlement, can render tolerable to these fugitives the rigors of a frigid clime?

A Political Financier.

We see by an announcement in some of the papers that Mr. AUGUST BELMONT—whom the Herald used to dignify with the title of the "Absent per absent Chairman of the National Democratic Committee"—has returned to the City, and is prepared to resume his position of leader of society (of a certain kind) and negotiator of bonds for the Ring. He signalizes his reappearance by a card in his "absent per absent" organs, in which he cautions the public against believing anything that has been said to the detriment of his Imperial Highness during his absence, by people in general and by the TIMES in particular, assuring them that "all the charges, accusations, insinuations and innuendoes therein contained of his complicity with corrupt transactions or corrupt men are false and calumnious." This is a very easy way of answering charges, we must confess, and, so far as we are concerned, it is a way to which we have become accustomed. When, in September, 1870, we accused the Controller of cheating the City, we were told that our charges were "false and calumnious." When we accused Messrs. J. J. ASTOR, MOSES TAYLOR & Co. of deceiving their fellow-citizens by means of a whitewashing certificate, we were told the same thing. But time proved that all we had said was true, and time will show which is right now—Mr. BELMONT or ourselves. It is probable that TWEED and GARVEY, if they were able to write, and had a book of synonyms before them, could dispose of all the charges against them in the same off-hand style as that which the august BELMONT chooses for the conveyance of his sentiments to the meaner portion of mankind. But the charges would remain unanswered, nevertheless. Mr. BELMONT's complicity with many of the transactions of the Ring is to be judged by the share he has had in those transactions, and his complicity with corrupt men may be inferred from his intimacy with them. Is he not the political associate and ally of that notorious swindler, JAMES FISK, Jr.?

It is said that politics, like misery, brings a man acquainted with strange bedfellows, and it is the misfortune of Mr. BELMONT that his political bedfellows have been mostly Tammany Sachems who wore "rings" in their noses. Being a money-lender and a financier, as well as a politician, it was hardly possible for him to escape some kind of complicity in the financial operations of his friends. But he chose his own course, and he must abide by it. In becoming the agent of the ROTHSCHILDS in this country, he saw fit, whether from motives of patriotism or pelf, to become a leading Democratic politician; and he cannot complain if his acts are criticised like those of any other politician. No criticism that the TIMES could make would be more damaging to his character than the criticisms of his own party papers, when, at the close of the last Presidential campaign, they accused him of making use of his position as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee to sell out his party. Here is what a leading Democratic paper said of him in 1869:

"Mr. BELMONT, as the agent of the house of ROTHSCHILD, was interested in securing the success of the ticket pledged to legislation looking to the payment of the United States debt, principal and interest, both in specie. Therefore he was interested in defeating the Democratic ticket, which was pledged to the taxation of Government bonds and their early payment in greenbacks. The means which he employed was the deliberate and purposed omission to provide the party with a responsible organ, amenable for its language and tone to the party heads; his omission to attend to the business of the campaign; his studied and deliberate absence from the City at the time of the treasonable defection of the World, and his intentional neglect to return to the City and lend that assistance to repair the damage effected by the World, which he alone, as he knew, could possibly have afforded. Mr. BELMONT was the agent of the ROTHSCHILDS, and he owed everything to this house, and would not dare to act against its wishes; and his movements were based less upon his duties as Chairman of the Democratic Committee than upon his duty as servant of the house of ROTHSCHILD. The desire for BELMONT's removal (from the Chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee) is universal. In becoming an American citizen he has retained his allegiance and bias to European and aristocratic institutions. He is not only not a Democrat; he is not even practically an American citizen. He was chosen for office on account of his wealth and supposed liberality. The money he advanced to the family of STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS is now proved to have been loaned on bond and mortgage, and the action, thus stripped of its gloss, falls from the level of a noble benefaction to that of a pawnbroker's shop. In the general election of 1868 he deliberately and treasonably surrendered the Democratic Party upon the eve of battle."

It is a curious fact that the leading candidate for successor to Mr. BELMONT, as Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, was WILLIAM M. TWEED, thus showing that he stood even below that ubiquitous financier in the estimation of his party. But two such intimate friends as BELMONT and TWEED could not bear the thought of rivalry; so Mr. TWEED magnanimously withdrew, and it is probably owing to his exertions in behalf of his friend that Mr. BELMONT holds the position of Chairman of the Committee today. It is base ingratitude for him to throw TWEED overboard now; but he makes the best atonement he can by trying to secure HALL, who is equally as big a rogue. He probably finds HALL more useful to him just now than TWEED, just as he found it more profitable to defeat than to elect the Democratic ticket in 1868.

An Important Capture.

One of the most dangerous gangs of thieves and cut-throats that ever infested the South-western country has just been broken up. The two leaders of the gang are known as HILARY FARRINGTON and WILLIAM BARTON. These men have been arrested at a small place called Verona, on the line of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, a few miles from the Indian Territory, and their capture was effected after one of the most exciting pursuits ever recorded.

It will be remembered that on the 21st of last July, the express train of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was invaded at Moscow, Ky., by three men in disguise. These ruffians attacked the express messenger in his car, overpowered him, forced the safes in his charge, took all the money and securities there, and escaped. Energetic efforts were made to track the thieves but without success. On the 23d of October, the up-train stopped at Union, Tenn., twenty minutes for supper. While the express messenger and all the train attendants but one, were in the adjacent eating-houses, two men suddenly leaped into the express-car. The guard was there alone, he having been left in charge. Presenting their revolvers at his head, the robbers threatened to blow his brains out if he raised an alarm. At the same instant, two confederates who, at the same time, had boarded the locomotive, pulled open the lever, started the train backward, and went off down the line at tremendous speed. This, we believe, is the only instance ever known of stealing a railroad train. FISK and GOULD did, however, steal an entire railroad.

Several persons were arrested for these crimes, but in each case it appears a mistake was made. The prisoners, it was found, might be of the gang, but its leaders, the express robbers themselves, were still at large. Little by little the history and exploits of these men became known. It was discovered that the two were brothers; that they had committed several murders and a great number of successful robberies; that they had carried on their operations in several States, and, the better to cover their plans, had kept quiet country stores in the same locality, affecting the while to be strangers to each other. At last a band was regularly organized to hunt the rascals down, and PINKERTON, the noted Chicago detective, was placed in charge. The trail was only found after repeated failure and many ingenious experiments. It was struck in the end, however, and the way in which it was followed up may be guessed from the fact that the outlaws rode four hundred miles across the country, with the officers hot at their heels, before the capture. Pursuers and pursued dashed through swamps and cane-brakes, across streams and through woods, never relaxing their ardor until the capture was made. Even when the robbers were brought to bay, the affair had a singular termination. The house wherein they took refuge was bolted and barred in such a way that entrance seemed impossible, and the men within were desperate and heavily armed. To repeated demands for their surrender they returned simple defiance. Finally, the officers actually set fire to the house; and only when the entire building was wrapped in flames, and it was thought its inmates must surely be roasted alive, did they march sullenly forth. The men will be put on trial under a dozen different indictments, and it may be hoped that the country is rid for once and all of two of the most unscrupulous and mischievous criminals in its whole limits. And now, when are we to smoke out our railroad thieves—FISK and GOULD.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Grand Jury of the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday made an important presentment of some of our City institutions. The "prison pen" of Essex Market they represent as a "disgrace to civilization. In a badly-ventilated room, about ten feet by fifteen, prisoners of both sexes, numbering from forty to seventy, are daily confined, irrespective of the charge for which they are arrested, whether it be for the simple violation of a City ordinance or the most infamous of crimes." The prisoners' room at Jefferson Market, where a man was recently frozen to death, they pronounce to be a "perfect ice-box, where prisoners of both sexes, young and old, innocent and guilty, are huddled together." In examining the workings of Ludlow-street Jail, known as the Debtors' Prison, the jury are led to the conviction that imprisonment for debt ought to be wholly abolished, as being productive of more harm than good. An increase of the Police force of the City is imperatively demanded in the opinion of the jury, the present force of 2,100 men being entirely inadequate to the service demanded of them. The representations of the jury deserve the immediate attention of the authorities.

The treatment of the election-fraud cases by the Oyer and Terminer Grand Jury, yesterday, calls for explanation. After repeated postponements, the presentation of these cases was finally arranged for yesterday, and at 11 o'clock upward of sixty witnesses were in attendance. The work of inquiry had only begun when JIM FISK arrived, and went before the jury, where he remained until the hour of adjournment. FISK's business had not been previously arranged for a hearing yesterday. The election cases had, and the District-Attorney is said to have protested against what looks very like a highly arbitrary and unjust course of proceeding. The conduct of the jury is rendered more aggravated by the fact that the bulk of the witnesses were laboring men, in many cases from distant parts of the City. These men were, of course, engaged at the discharge of a duty which brings them under the ban of a class of fashionable chatterers, who would gladly see scruples to stand in the way of revenue. If the Grand Jury must give their days to influential characters like JIM FISK, they ought at least to afford an evening session for the laboring men.

It is supposed by many that education is almost the last thing thought of in the countries of South America. Yet provision for teaching the young has of late been carried even to the compulsory form. The Assembly of the Province of Rhode Janeiro has passed a law making it obligatory on parents and guardians to send their children to school. This applies to both sexes, and to all persons between the ages of seven and fourteen. The school may be either public or private, but to one or the other all must go. Children whose parents are too poor to give them decent clothing are to be clad at the cost of the Provincial Treasury. Such legislation as this, coupled with the good news from the country districts wherein the new Slave act has gone into effect, gives cheering hopes for the future of Brazil.

The intelligence from the Diamond Fields of South Africa is more and more exciting. In the fortnight preceding the departure of the last mail, there were sold at Cape Town alone nearly four thousand carats' weight of stones. A single stone is spoken of, weighing, in the rough, 154 carats. The "Koh-i-noor," in its dressed state, weighs but 106 carats, but of course the loss in cutting is very great. It is now declared that the diamond supply is increased at the rate of fully one-third annually, the excess coming from South Africa. The vexed question again arises, whether the value of the gems will not necessarily be reduced in consequence of their greater abundance. Perhaps the true answer is that the rise of the jewels may be somewhat retarded by the augmented supply; but that the continually increasing demand will prevent any material diminution in price. Moreover, we are rather sceptical about these South African diamonds.

In the little town of Bristol, N. H., there had been, until the other night, no house on fire for eighteen months. The charm was broken at last, and flames burst out, in a locality where, if unchecked, they might have brought wide disaster. But a certain young gentleman, who had been "courting" that night, and who tore himself reluctantly from his charmer at about 3 o'clock in the morning, gave the alarm. The fire companies were quickly on hand, the flames were subdued, and great was the rejoicing thereat. This took a practical form in the shape of a handsome present, which has been given to the lady for keeping her lover up so late. We hope young ladies will not be led into irregular habits by this precedent.

Official Visit of a Russian Prison Director—An Examination of New-York Institutions.

Mr. W. SOLDATENKOFF, one of the three Government directors of the Russian prisons, is now on a tour in this country, for the purpose of making comparisons between the American system of prison-government and that practiced in his own country. An official visit has been made by him to the Albany Penitentiary, and another to the Sing Sing Prison. Yesterday the Tombs, County Jail, a number of sub-prisons and Police Stations, were visited.

Mr. SOLDATENKOFF speaks English fluently, and appears to be well acquainted with the prison systems of the civilized world. EMMA HARRIS, Secretary of the New-York Prison Association, accompanied the Russian official, and secured for him a thorough inspection of the various institutions visited. Quite a long stay was made at Ludlow-street Jail. Mr. SOLDATENKOFF, after a thorough examination of the heating appliances of the jail, stated that he intended to take into consideration the subject of their introduction into the prisons of his own country. The gentlemen did not express approval of the state of affairs in the minor prisons, having had the same faults in their convenience brought to their attention as those which attracted the notice of the Grand Jury of Oyer and Terminer on their tour of investigation. A visit will be shortly made by Mr. SOLDATENKOFF and Dr. HARRIS to Kings County Prison and Blackwell's Island.

Affairs at the Sheriff's Office.

Nothing unusual took place at the Sheriff's office yesterday, there being even a dearth of rumors. It was stated positively that no papers from the District-Attorney had been brought to the Sheriff's office during the day.

Mr. BENNAM assured a TIMES reporter that there was no probability of a fee, as it was impossible for him to know, that anything of importance would take place. "To-morrow, you know," said the Sheriff, "the Grand Jury will again sit, and I, like every one else, will expect something of moment to result from the meeting."

Belmont and Hall.

BELMONT, the banker, has returned to the City, and is again busy in his efforts to save HALL the mortification of an expulsion from the Union Club. Whether he will succeed or not remains to be seen, but the chances are decidedly against him.

The Superior Court Clerkship.

A meeting of the Judges of the Superior Court took place yesterday, with a view to take action in relation to the resignation of JAMES M. SWEENY as Clerk, and the appointment of his successor, but no definite result was arrived at.

The Grand Jury.

There was no session of the Grand Jury of the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, that body having adjourned over until today, when the case of Mayor HALL will be taken up.

The Louisiana Coast Planters—The Sugar Crop.

From the New-Orleans Times, Dec. 17.

Our planters are hurrying in their crops, and the coast boats came in yesterday heavily laden with saccharine. The freezing and frost of the several days past, have necessitated great urgency in pressing out the juice, which will sour rapidly in case of warm weather. The season being late, and the yield generally poor, there will be some loss from this cause. Altogether the yield will be below the estimate of last year. Though much more was planted and cultivated than last season, the weather has been generally so unfavorable that the yield has been considerably less. On a majority of the plantations but little over half a crop will be realized. Notwithstanding this unsatisfactory yield, there is a general feeling of hopefulness, and a spirit of activity and enterprise, quite perceptible among our planters, which gives assurance of improved prospects and enlarged returns. The prospect of a tariff, or of that of the Louisiana Levee Company, in building and repairing the levees, having been dissipated, the planters have set to work generally to build their own levees, in the hope, based on the assurance, that the State would reimburse them.

A Correction by Gen. Hawley.

The Hartford Courant corrects the statement that Gen. HAWLEY, in his recent lecture in Brooklyn, stated of his own knowledge that a present member of the United States Senate paid $75,000 to secure his election. It says "Among a large number of instances of corruption and rumored corruption, given in illustration of his argument, he mentioned this, that he had been informed by an authority that claimed to know, that a Senator had expended $75,000 in securing his election, but of this Gen. HAWLEY disclaimed any personal knowledge whatever; nor did he give any shadow of intimation as to when or where, or by whom this was done."

Mr. McCreery's Acceptance.

After Hon. THOMAS C. MCCREERY had been nominated for United States Senator by the Democratic members of the Kentucky Legislature, he was introduced into the caucus and made a little speech, in which he said: "You have filled the measure of my ambition, and beyond my present position and my incoming term, I shall never aspire to any place whatever. Your generous confidence inspires me with gratitude, and arms me in a resolution to do all in my power to merit your continued esteem. If I shall fail by brilliant display to win your applause, I expect, by an honest and faithful discharge of duty, to retain your respect."

THE TRUTH AT LAST.

It will be seen from the following extracts from journals published in various parts of the country, that the true object of the "Reform-Fenton-Trumbull" move in the United States is beginning to be clearly understood. The journals which are committed to hostility to the President still try to confuse the question, but the common sense of the country is not to be deceived:

THE CONCLUSION OF THE SENATE.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

The final action of the Senate upon the questions which it has had under discussion for several days ought to satisfy the most captious. Indeed, the substantial unanimity which is reached at last is the best evidence that there was no difference upon the essential questions involved. As the matter now stands, it permits no sinister proclamation of warfare, while it secures the fullest investigation.

Instead of a special Committee, the Senate has appointed a standing Committee on Retrenchment and Investigation. This body is now authorized to investigate precisely the methods contemplated in Mr. TRUMBULL's resolution, and possesses precisely the same powers. It covers all Departments; the reform of the civil service, and the correction of all abuses. Upon making the Committee, with Gov. BOUTWELL as Chairman, there was not a dissenting vote among the Republicans, and but one among the Democrats. In a word, the Senate has adopted, in its most comprehensive scope, the common sense of the country is not to be deceived:

And it is against this kind of tactics that we complain, and against the impudence of every one who has a right to complain. It is no small desperadoes, and treacherous misconduct of political procedure. The recent demonstration of Senator TRUMBULL was part of it, and typifies exactly what we refer to. It is an effort to destroy public confidence in President GRANT, and to make standing-room for somebody else. And this is a species of treachery not limited. It is glad and comfort to our political opponents; it is treachery not only to principle, but to those measures which our great party is imperatively summoned to establish and maintain.

THE MANCHESTER INSURRECTION.

Syracuse Journal.

Whoever stops to consider the assumptions of the "Independents," who are waging a relentless warfare upon the leadership of the Republican Party, while still professing to be loyal to that party, cannot be deceived as to the real motives which actuate these Quixotic gentlemen. Suppose the political patronage was at the unqualified disposal of those Senators, in those respective States—as in some instances it was, until the Senators proved themselves unworthy of the Executive confidence and favor—would there be any such belligerent demonstrations as were made in the Senate Chamber? To this consideration add that of disappointed ambition, in the failure to reach the highest Executive station of the nation, and the motives for this crusade are fully accounted for. The defection of the eleven Republican Senators has this basis, and none other, whatever pretexts for it may be put upon it.

It is perhaps well, as the result has shown, that the Senators who have not, by their own duplicity, rapacity or folly, been ostracized from the Presidency, met the impeachables in debate, and exposed the vile treachery by which TRUMBULL, SUMNER, SCHURZ and their adherents intended to manufacture out of the Republican majority in Congress a force to further a paper plot to strengthen and defeat that party in the approaching Presidential campaign. The discussion was acrimonious and heated, but while it revealed the strength of the Administration in the Senate, where the support of the ablest, purest and most honored Republicans was most cordially given to it, the whole scheme of the traitorous, these game was thinly concealed under the disguise of a deep-seated and all-absorbing devotion to reform measures, was ventilated to the world. It was, probably, better to have the controversy developed at this early date than to permit the conspiracy to ripen more fully in the country for silence, until, on the eve of the National Convention, it might be more dangerous to harmony and success that it can now by any means become. The motives and intentions of the discontented elements having been exposed, they are now much more readily provided against, and the country is prepared for meeting unexpectedly in an important emergency.

The spirit in which these spurious reformers have prosecuted their plans, was exhibited quite strikingly in the remarks of a Nebraska Senator, Mr. TIPTON, who has so little precedence as to be wholly unable to conceal his real motives. He professed to be able to see corruption everywhere, but when pinned down to facts, could specify no place where it existed in the National Government; nevertheless, he insisted that he "was not prepared to interfere with free railroad passes" and with a carte blanche to go to every part of the country, and investigate every department of the Government." This was the TIPTONIAN comprehension of the vast subject involved in the proposed investigation and reform—a mere party movement. And that party leader, who would reveal in "free railroad passes" "with a carte blanche to go to every part of the country," to an acknowledged and (by Democratic papers) much-quoted champion of the new political sensation, which is now having its day of brief notoriety.

GEN. GRANT AND HIS DETRACTORS.

Albany Journal.

It is a matter of grave doubt whether any man, public or private, has been pursued with more intense malignity than Gen. GRANT, President of the United States. In the discharge of public duties some aspirants for position must be disappointed, and in his case those who sought the power and emoluments of office and were unsuccessful in their schemes, have become the most virulent of opponents, not only assaulting the Administration by criticising its acts, but have stepped outside the ordinary range of journalism and invaded the private character of the President, have made it upon parade of his daily life in every possible shape, and failing even there, have attacked, misrepresented and maligned his family and slandered his relatives.

Chief among this list of Gen. GRANT's defamers stands CHARLES A. DANA, editor of the New-York Sun. A supporter of the President during the entire canvass which resulted in his election and the triumph of the Republican cause, Mr. DANA made hot haste before even then, GRANT was inducted into the Executive chair to press what he chose to consider his claims to the office of Collector of the Port of New-York. For reasons which Mr. DANA himself has proved by his subsequent course to its simple, to insist in obtaining the coveted prize, and [illegible] have never the Sun, which "makes no fair fight," [illegible] as bitter and unscrupulous a partisan sheet as [illegible] has the effrontery to accuse [illegible] of. The people of this country will [illegible] with any one of whom an unfair statement is made. In whatever relation or political position. In common parlance, they like "fair play," and are quick to resent everything which bears upon its face evidence that personal malice and self, rather than high public considerations, govern the one who prefers public charges. In this view, the Sun has simply and entirely failed to reach a desired result. It has not succeeded the ordinary bounds of criticism that DANA, in attempting to depreciate GRANT, is only belittling himself. Of course the New-York World, all things to all men, joins with the Sun in its crusade. Of course, having been for and against the Young Democracy, for and against Fullmany, for and against everything and everybody except MANTON MARBLE, it joins in with the lunatic on the other corner of the same street, and echoes the charges of a would-be Collector—a played-out politician.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED.

Trenton Daily State Gazette.

If the howl that has lately been raised by certain factional Republicans, and all the Democratic papers, has caused any one to doubt that President GRANT and his Administration were honestly and earnestly in favor of thorough reform of the civil service, the special message sent to Congress by the President on Monday, accompanying the surveys and the correspondence of the Civil Service Reform Commission, and the action of the Administration Senators in reference to the investigations of the Retrenchment Committee, must have dissipated them. No candid person can longer doubt, in the face of these facts, that President GRANT has the heart as well as the will to carry reform in one of the saliest features of his Administration.

On the very eve of a new contest he voluntarily and with alacrity strips himself of all the power which envious and designing foes have declared that he was abusing to further ambitious enterprises. The Assembly people will thank President GRANT for the unexpected relief from the [illegible] of Civil Service Examinations. His character with such gentlemen is more during the trying period of the war for the Union. He has by a bold, prompt, and manful act, pursued the country on its civil which all other Presidents have shrunk from with fear and disgust. As we have before said, he "fight it out on that line if it took all summer," and great common sense of the nation breaks in unison with his own. And now Messrs. GREELEY, SCHURZ, SQUARE, and TURNER, let us have peace.

THE TRIBUNE AND THE PRESIDENT.

New-Haven Journal.

It was not to be reasonably expected that the Tribune would be content with the President's apologies on civil service reform. That subject can be reserved as a bomb to beat out the political brains of Gen. GRANT, and when it is seen that he has only [illegible] the weapon in his own hands, but is disposed to use it with his accustomed directness and vigor, there is disappointment and disgust at the Tribune office, and willing brains are cudgeled for faults in the course of the President. Why did he not do before what he is to begin with the new year? Everybody approved of committing the details of the business to a commission of distinguished men of both parties, though the people of the President were surprised and dissatisfied because the gentlemen selected were notoriously earnest friends of radical reform; now the Tribune demands to know why the Presidents waited for the stately deliberations of the Commission before taking practical steps in the business they were appointed to investigate. Congress passed an act providing for the Commission, and the President complied with its terms, complied cheerfully, as the character of the men he selected for the service attests. Having thus proceeded in accordance with the course pointed out by the law-making power, and in the half-hearted speech how unreasonable to ask why he did not anticipate the action of the Commission and disregard the act of Congress. Had he done so, he would not only have insulted the very respectable gentlemen called to undertake the consideration of the business under an act of Congress, but he must necessarily have proceeded on some rash, hastily-devised scheme, and the chances would have been that he would have taken would have been made and the whole business botched and embarrassed for months, if not for years. And finally, we should have had the Tribune demanding why the President did not await the action of the Commission he had himself called to this roaching in the business blind-folded.

This is all there is in the Tribune's adverse criticism of the Message. The President has acted wisely and judiciously in the matter, and the whole country will give him credit for intelligent zeal in the matter. Having now in his hands a well-digested plan, he will go forward, sure of ground, and every step and every important step will have to be retraced. To be sure, it is a little unfortunate for certain Anti-Grant politicians who have claimed a monopoly of Civil Service reform, and who have labored with great pertinacity for many months to convince the people that Gen. GRANT was the last to favor wholesome change, that he should come before the country so completely vindicated, but the people care very little for the selfish projects of the discontented. They do want a thorough and durable reform of the civil service, and they will be better pleased with the President's way of getting at it than they would have been had he rushed it half-hazard. American fashion, and practically defeased the whole measure by botching it into confusion. Gen. GRANT may not be much of a politician, but his straightforward, manly, honest way of doing what he finds the people desire to be accomplished, has promoted to stand by the confidence of "plain people," and plotting politicians will fail in their efforts to overthrow him.

FACTION IN THE SENATE.

Daily Saratogian.

In order to understand correctly the bearing and drift of the Senatorial debate at Washington last week, in which the leading disputants were, on the one hand, several leading Democrats associated with Messrs. SUMNER, SCHURZ, TIPTON, of Nebraska, and one or two others, opposed by Messrs. CONKLING, ROSCOE and others, it is necessary to know [illegible] the factious opposition to the Administration which sprung up last Winter, and conducted permanently and insidiously during the last Fall campaign, has been once more renewed, as bitterly as ever, at the Capitol. The politicians who are trying to beat GRANT are men of long experience in political peculiarities of unprecedented power, and they have allied to their [illegible] newspaper auxiliaries, with the Tribune at their head, backing up with here and there an influential journal in the West, the Springfield Republican, and two or three lesser lights of the Press in its State, like the Syracuse Standard. It is a matter of course, the entire Democratic Press is in the ery against it; this is nothing else, and all, from GREELEY to DANA to Brick POMEROY, join in the chorus.

"And maybe he'll retire!"
"And maybe he won't!"

The scene of the contest at present, and for the coming three or four months, will be on the floor of Congress. The debate of last week on the Trumbull resolution was the first encounter, and it should be denoted and considered as such and nothing else. The question was simply whether the Committee on Retrenchment and Reform should be so constituted as to appear to reflect adversely upon the Administration beforehand, or whether it should be so formed as to insure simply a fair and impartial consideration of all questions that might come before it. It was not so much investigation that was wanted by the avowed enemies of the Administration as something that would be interpreted as a slur upon the President. The [illegible] of the movers in the Trumbull raid stands out too plainly. Tyrrow blabbed it right out, and the factious papers could not conceal it.

THE TRIBUNE'S REAL GRIEVANCE.

Brooklyn Union.

What Gen. GRANT has been endeavoring to do is to secure a chance in the usage, and place appointments in the civil service on a more equitable basis. He has been far in advance of the politicians on this question. Nothing can be more querulous and uncandid than the criticism of the New-York Tribune upon him because he has moved so "leisurely" in securing the end aimed at. The Tribune knows perfectly well that this question is not one which the President himself can settle without the support of public sentiment, and was without the aid and co-operation of others. The difficulty with the Tribune consists in the fact that the President has refused to make his appointments according to its dictation. If he had done so, he would have been all right with the Tribune.

The people will appreciate the fact that Gen. GRANT is the only President, since the time of ANDREW JACKSON, who had attempted to accomplish any reform in the matter of civil service appointments. He is the only President who has pressed the subject upon the attention of Congress. Whatever his calumniators and critics may say, he stands before the country to-day as being the friend of this much-needed reform. He asks Congress to aid him therein, and proposes as the first step in the work by Congress instituting the rules drawn up by the Civil Service Commissioners. Such is Gen. GRANT'S answer to those who are so anxious to disparage him in the estimate of the people. There is no difficulty in understanding the motives of this persistent attack upon the President.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Philadelphia Post.

The President has completely taken the wind out of the swelling sails of his opponents, who, under the pretext of reform, have been striving to damage his reputation before the people. He has sent to Congress the report of the Civil Service Commissioners, and has indorsed it in a message, which is unquestionable proof that he is resolved to do all in his power to abolish the abuses that exist under the present system of political appointments. The recommendations of the Commissioners he submits with little comment, leaving the whole matter with Congress. He asks that body to give the strength to carry out the reforms proposed.

THE GREAT REFORM.

Report of the Civil Service Commissioners.

The Principles of the New Rules Practical.

We have already given the message of President GRANT accompanying the report of the Civil Service Commissioners, and also the rules recommended by the Commission, adopted by the President, and to go into operation Jan. 1, 1872. The report of the Commission is a compact and forcible paper. It opens with a historical review of the question and a general description of the evils of the present system, which we are compelled to omit. The report then explains the rules submitted as follows:

If, then, it be conceded that nobody should be appointed to any position in the civil service who is not qualified by character, capacity and intelligence to discharge its duties, it is obviously necessary to ascertain those qualifications. This can be done only by investigation, examination and probation. It is a very common opinion, however, that examinations will be practically of no service, because the character and qualifications of the candidate are known to the English branches, the result would be the same. Yet from the nature of the case, in many conditions to classes of persons are necessarily excepted. Upon the Pacific coast there must be employed in the Post-office Customs natives who are familiar with their own language and not with ours, and who, under our laws, cannot be naturalized. They are indispensable to the proper service of the Department, and their appointment, exempted from the rule of citizenship and of knowledge of the English language; and in all similar cases the exception must be made. So, also, in the consular service there are many officers, such as consular agents, and sometimes Consuls, at points where either the emolument is too insignificant to be desired by any properly-qualified American citizen, or where there is no emolument whatever, the only advantage of the office to the incumbent being that of the American protection, which is often of very great value to a native.

If it be thought that if the examination be opened to everybody there will be an inconvenient throng of applicants, it is to be remembered, in the first place, that in no other way can the chance be made equal to all qualified persons; in the second, that the fact of any honest examination whatever will repel multitudes of those who are consciously unqualified; and, in the third, that the knowledge that the examination is to be competitive will reduce the applicants to a comparatively manageable number.

If it be further objected that, to open the opportunity to all qualified applicants is to give the late enemy of the Government the same chance to serve it with the citizen who offered his life in its defence, the reply is, that it would be a fatally unwise policy to perpetuate proscription in a reformed civil service. Such a policy would fortunate slander and reward falsehood. It would incite every disappointed applicant and his friends to charge a successful rival with continued hostility to the Government, and the civil service would become the hot-bed of passions, which patriotism and wisdom equally abhor. To guard upon such a proscription would be to exclude peremptorily all of the citizens in one part of the country from any position in the civil service.

The purpose of the examination is to ascertain the fitness of the applicant for the position to which he aspires. But a mere pass or standard examination—that is, an examination which requires of an applicant only the ability to pass an easy line, and to become one of many from whom the appointment is to be made—is an examination which constantly tends, under the pressure of patronage, to become a mere form, and which, as now held in custom-houses and elsewhere, is, however, the applicant knows that he must not only pass the line, but pass it so as to be ranked among the two or three highest of his associates, proficiency alone will determine the result. The most powerful patronage cannot make the candidate really qualified or more intelligent than competitors who are his superiors, and such patronage would be powerless. Its only hope, then, is to corrupt the examiners to permit collusion; and the possibility of collusion is to be obviated by the details of method of examination and certificate. The honest competitive examination is the only fundamental security against the power of patronage, and, when tested by subtle and irrelevant influences, it selects not those who are most strongly urged, but those who are most fully qualified.

A competitive examination, indeed, rigidly enforced, results in the selection of one candidate only for appointment. But this question early presented itself: Should there be created a Board of Examiners wholly independent of the appointing power, with authority to designate a single person as entitled to appointment, would not the Board of Examiners, a body wholly unknown to the Constitution, be virtually the appointing power? This point was submitted to the Attorney-General of the United States, who, in the opinion appended to this report, held that the appointing power mentioned in the Constitution necessarily implies the exercise of judgment and will, and that while Congress, in creating offices, could also prescribe the conditions upon which they should be filled, yet that the conditions must be so prescribed as still to leave with the appointing power the exercise of judgment and will of the appointing power; and that as the imperative designation of one person by the Board in question destroyed that discretion, it is not within the constitutional power of Congress to authorize it; although the appointing power itself is entirely free to adopt such a method at its pleasure. Nor could there be any doubt of the right of Congress to provide for the presentation of a class from whom the appointment should be made, because, within a class, or a certain number of persons, there is still room for the exercise of judgment and will.

We have, therefore, preferred to avoid all questions whatever by providing that the three names standing highest upon the list of excellence in the examination shall be presented to the appointing power, and that from this three is left absolutely to the appointing power.

It will be observed, also, that we treat vacancies as single and successive. If we did otherwise, it would result that, as a class of three is to be presented for each appointment, there must be, for five vacancies at the same time, five classes of three names each, making fifteen in all; and supposing the selection to be made of the first in each three, the five appointed would not be the first at the head of the list, but the first, fourth, seventh, tenth and thirteenth. But if we treat the appointment to be made to each vacancy as successive, although precisely simultaneous, the result would be that the first three names would be offered for the first appointment; the second, third and fourth for the second; the third, fourth and fifth for the third; and so on; so that the five vacancies would be filled from the first seven applicants who were found qualified, yet in such a way that the first five would probably receive the appointment.

But, still further to limit and baffle insidious political influence, we propose not only that the appointment shall be made from the few who are proved to be best qualified, but that it shall be made to the lowest grade of any graded group of positions. The prizes for which there is the strongest pressure are often the higher positions in the various Departments. But if a vacancy occurs among those, we propose, for the reasons already mentioned, that the first chance of the appointment shall be given to those who are already within the group; and if none are found qualified, that it shall then be filled by the same competitive method as the positions in the lowest grade. Here again patronage would be baffled.

A competitive examination in general and special knowledge, however, although it would show certain attainments which are indispensable to the proper discharge of certain duties, would not necessarily prove the faculty of skillfully adapting that knowledge to the public service. It is a common remark that a man could answer all the book questions, as they are called, and yet prove to be an inefficient officer. This is not true. Nothing of books might be very serviceable. There may sometimes be true; but there are undoubtedly persons enough who have also the natural power, acuteness and thorough business aptitude. In a general examination this can be little more than inferred; nothing but practice tests this kind of efficiency, and we therefore provide that when an applicant has sustained all other examinations, his skill in applying his knowledge to the duties of the office shall be proved by a practice of six months, and that he shall be finally appointed only when he has satisfied this test. Probation, indeed, is nothing but the test of those essential qualities of an officer which it is often asserted cannot be ascertained by examination.

There are, however, many officers who must necessarily be excepted from such a rule. Those who are appointed by the Presidents, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, are not, after their confirmation by the Senate, removable but by its consent. The rules that the President might adopt to determine the nomination could not bind the Senate, and such cases must, therefore, be excepted. Neither could a system of probation be competitively applied to consuls appointed as foreign ports; and all officers in the foreign service are, therefore, excepted. So with post-masters, a very large number of whom hold their positions rather as a convenience to the public than as an advantage to themselves. They are separate and independent offices often of solitary occupation. There can be no test of their service except the correctness of their accounts with the General Post-office, and the satisfaction of those who are served by them. The duteousness of the duty must, therefore, be the probation, and if that is unsatisfactory the appointment must be revoked. In the third place, the condition is given to every person in the service, performed either by the person appointed or by him who asks the appointment, it is only logical that the spirit of the same bargain should continue. Those who pay heavy party taxes out of small salaries are tempted to make up the loss by dishonest gains. Many will pay it, to continue in the chance of such gains. Indeed, it is upon this very disposition that dishonest politicians count to secure the activity of those who are taxed.

But we do not believe that the country wishes to see the active management of politics in the hands of those who have a personal pecuniary interest in certain results. We have no wish to suggest that those who are in the civil service should not take such interest in politics as their feelings may dictate, but we propose that it shall be upon equal terms with all other citizens. They may be members of political clubs and associations, and pay as they will the taxes which their themselves may impose; but no person interested in prohibiting premiums upon dishonesty in politics. And although, in the system that we propose, which contemplates fitness, and not political opinion, as the condition of admission to the service, this kind of political taxation will probably be found a powerful corrective rule forbidding at once this injurious practice will be both an earnest of the spirit of the reformed system and in itself an immediate and inspiring reform.

The officers who are exempted from the general provisions of the rules are certain high officers of state, who are properly political, as the Heads of Departments, upon their responsibility; professional officers, whose careers are a constant examination, and who have already passed actual technical examinations in their professions; certain officers of a peculiar responsibility, and boards of visitors and examiners, whose positions are honorary, or whose emoluments are merely nominal. The reasons for such exceptions have already remarked, in the declaration of the popular will upon the general policy of Government. The people select as candidates those who are satisfactory representatives of the differing policies, and the successful candidate properly surrounds himself with those whom he knows to be in entire sympathise with the policy he represents and who will assist him in its development. It may be difficult to determine precisely the limits of the offices, which, in this sense, may be called political. But we do not think that we have extended those limits beyond general approval, or so far as to impair the efficiency of the system that we propose.

In submitting these suggestions with the rules which we have framed, we feel that it is not so much as who do it as the intelligent public opinion of the country. There has long been a profound conviction that the system of appointments to the civil service upon political considerations only, is one which needs the most pressing reform, equally dangerous to the purity and efficiency of the civil service, the country most earnestly desires. It that sanction should be delayed, the rules adopted for this action by the President could not bind his successor. But unless we are wholly mistaken, the reform would so vindicate itself to the good sense of the country that the people themselves would reject any party and any candidate that proposed to relapse into the present practice. The improvement of the civil service is emphatically the people's cause, the people's reform; and the administration which vigorously begins it will acquire a glory only less than that of the salvation of a free Union.

HARPER & BROTHERS, New-York,
Will publish to-morrow:
I.
ROUND THE WORLD: Including
A Residence in Victoria, and a Journey by Rail Across North America.
BY A BOY.
Edited by SAMUEL SMILES,
Author of "Character," "Self-Help," &c.
Illustrated.
12mo, cloth, $1 50.

"In 'Round the World' a lad of sixteen, threatened with a pulmonary complaint, is sent from England to Australia, becomes a clerk in a settlement far in the interior, where he remains for eighteen months. Regaining his health, he returns home by way of the Sandwich Islands, California, the Pacific Railroad, New-York, and the Atlantic steamers. In letters to his friends he tells just what he saw. Samuel Smiles, the father of the lad, has 'edited' these letters of his son; but it is clear that the book is essentially the work of the lad. It is just what a clever, well-trained boy should have written, thoroughly healthy, and the young author deserves the thanks of many boys."—Literary Bulletin.

II.
BORDER REMINISCENCES.
BY
RANDOLPH B. MARCY, U. S. A.,
Author of
"The Prairie Traveler," "Thirty Years of Army Life on the Border," &c.
Illustrated.
12mo, cloth, $2.

"Gen. Marcy's Border Reminiscences is an intensely interesting and amusing book. An extensive experience of border life, which brought him into contact with many of the oddest characters in the country, gave the author peculiar facilities for the collection of numerous incidents, anecdotes and stories of personal daring and adventure, which make up a book of rare entertainment. It will be read with equal pleasure by the domestic fireside and in the distant camps out on the borders of civilization, whence have come many of the most amusing stories in the book."

HARPER & BROTHERS will send the above works by mail, postage prepaid, to any part of the United States, on receipt of price.

FINANCIAL.

A FIRST-CLASS NEW-YORK SECURITY AT A LOW PRICE.

The undersigned offer for sale the FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS of the Syracuse and Chenango Valley Railroad, at 95 and accrued interest.

This road runs from the City of Syracuse to Smith's Valley, where it unites with the New-York Midland Railroad, thus connecting that city by a direct line of road with the Metropolis.

Its length is forty-two miles, its COST ABOUT $40,000 PER MILE, and it is MORTGAGED FOR LESS THAN $12,000 PER MILE; the balance of the funds required for its construction having been raised by subscription to the capital stock.

The road approaches completion. It traverses a populous and fertile district of the State, which insures it a paying business, and it is under the control of gentlemen of high character and ability. Its bonds possess all the requisites of an inviting investment. They are amply secured by a mortgage for LESS THAN ONE-THIRD THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY. They pay SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD INTEREST, and are offered five per cents. below par. The undersigned confidently recommend them to all classes of investors.

CHAS. A. BOSWORTH, CHAS. KEENER,
ALBERT G. BUNKER, JAMES HUNTER,
JOHN M. BURKE, FRANCIS LELAND,
EDMUND R. MILLER, GEO. W. ELDER.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, WM. A. BURTIS was unanimously re-elected President. LINDLEY MURRAY, Jr., Assist. Secretary.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE NORTHERN ASSURANCE COMPANY, of Aberdeen and London, having it in contemplation to extend their fire business in America, invite applications for the agency in New-York.

It is indispensable that the candidates should have had great experience either as managers or agents of first-class companies, and be able to give security for such an amount as may be thought necessary by the directors.

The Northern Assurance Company was established in 1836, has a capital of two millions sterling, fully subscribed by upwards of 700 shareholders, (whose liability is unlimited,) and possesses funds in hand (fire and life) to the amount of £300,000. The Company is prepared to make the deposits required by the laws of the State. Applications (which should, if possible, be accompanied by reference to one or more of the leading mercantile firms in London or Liverpool) to be addressed to the general manager, A. P. FLETCHER, at the Company's offices, No. 1 Moorgate-st., London, E. C.

OFFICE OF THE SECURITY LIFE INSURANCE AND ANNUITY COMPANY,

FINANCIAL.

$100,000,000 5-20 BONDS

HAVE BEEN CALLED IN BY THE GOVERNMENT, AND ARE NOW BEING PAID.

Many holders of those securities have been converting them, through us, into the

PEORIA & ROCK ISLAND First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds, thereby adding 25 PER CENT. TO THEIR CAPITAL, and about 45 PER CENT. to their YEARLY INCOME.

We recommend these bonds strongly, for the following reasons:

The Road, ninety-one miles in length, is already COMPLETED, and earning much more than the interest on the whole issue of bonds.

The mortgage, $1,500,000, is less than $16,500 per mile.

The road passes through a rich, populous, agricultural, manufacturing, and coal district.

It connects Peoria and Rock Island, two of the largest and most flourishing cities in Illinois, and forms part of a trunk-line from Indianapolis to St. Paul—470 miles. It also connects two navigable rivers—the Illinois and Mississippi. The bonds are authorized for the extra equipments and necessary buildings required to do the business now offered.

They are coupon bonds, $1,000 each, and can be registered if desired.

Interest, seven per cent., gold, free of tax, payable February and August.

Price, 90 and interest, in currency.

ERIE ROAD—REFORM.

On the 9th inst. a meeting of a number of American holders of the stock of the Erie Railway Company was held at Delmonico's, 5th-av. Messrs. W. H. Clarke, Reuben Manley and A. D. Williams were appointed a Committee to confer with such holders of Erie Railway stock as are opposed to the present management of the Road. At a subsequent session of the Committee, held on the 12th inst., Mr. John Swann, who represents the English shareholders, was invited to be present, and expressed his concurrence in the movement, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That all the American owners of Erie Railway Company's Stock, (whether standing in their own names or in those of other parties,) who are opposed to the present management of the Road, and desirous that the affairs of the Company shall be conducted on commercial and not on political principles, be invited to send Proxy expressly for 1872 and dated the 1st of January next, are requested to furnish an account of the premiums thereon, and a statement of all claims for return of premiums, to prevent discrepancies in the accounts.

NOTICE.

REDEMPTION OF 5-20 BONDS OF 1863.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Dec. 7, 1871.

By virtue of the authority given by an act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled "An Act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," I hereby give notice that the principal and accrued interest of the bonds hereinbelow designated, known as Five-Twenty Bonds, will be paid at the Treasury of the United States, in the City of Washington, on and after the 7th day of March, 1872, and that the interest on said bonds will cease on that day. That is to say, coupon bonds known as the SECOND SERIES, act of Feb. 25, 1862, dated May 1, 1862, as follows:

$50 from No. 1 to No. 5,460, both inclusive.
$100 from No. 1 to No. 15,062, both inclusive.
$500 from No. 1 to No. 7,562, both inclusive.
$1,000 from No. 1 to No. 11,018, both inclusive.

And registered bonds of the same act as follows:

$50 from No. 686 to No. 697, both inclusive.
$100 from No. 4,104 to No. 5,078, both inclusive.
$500 from No. 1,302 to No. 2,772, both inclusive.
$1,000 from No. 5,907 to No. 11,008, both inclusive.
$5,000 from No. 2,966 to No. 3,462, both inclusive.
$10,000 from No. 2,207 to No. 2,898, both inclusive.

Of the amount outstanding, (embraced in the numbers as above,) sixteen millions ($16,000,000) dollars are coupon bonds and four million ($4,000,000) dollars are registered bonds.

Coupon bonds of the act of Feb. 25, 1863, were issued in four distinct series. Bonds of the first series (all of which have been previously called for redemption) do not bear the series designation upon them, while those of the SECOND, third, and fourth series are distinctly marked on the face of the bonds.

United States securities forwarded for redemption should be addressed to the "LOAN DIVISION," Secretary's Office, and all Registered Bonds should be "assigned to the Secretary of the Treasury for redemption."

GEO. S. BOUTWELL, Secretary.

OFFER FOR SALE

any part of $6,000,000 GRAND RAPIDS AND INDIANA RAILROAD COMPANY'S FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable in GOLD, free of Government tax, being the balance remaining unsold of the $8,000,000 First Mortgage Bonds, which are also secured by a LAND GRANT of 1,000,000 acres of choice pine timber land, the proceeds of the sales of which are applied to the redemption of the bonds. Hon. W. A. Howard, Land Commissioner, reports, Dec. 12, that the land sales to that date amount to about 300,000 acres, at an average of $12 per acre. He estimates the proceeds of the entire land grant at not less $10,000,000, clear of expenses. Two hundred and twenty (220) miles of the railroad are now operating, earning more than enough money to pay the interest on the whole issue of bonds. Principal and accrued interest. We recommend these bonds to investors as a perfectly safe and desirable security.

REDEMPTION OF BONDS OF THE HOUSTON AND TEXAS CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY'S EXTENSION OF TIME.—Sealed proposals for the sale of bonds to the two sinking funds will be received until March 1, 1872. The amount in the sinking fund provided for the redemption of the bonds, secured by mortgages on the main line, is one hundred and twenty thousand ($120,000) dollars. The amount in the sinking fund provided for the redemption of the bonds, secured by mortgage on the Western Division, is thirty-two thousand ($32,000) dollars. Proposals should be addressed to the undersigned, and plainly indicate whether the bonds offered are of the main line or of the Western Division. The bonds offered at lowest price will be purchased, and successful bidders notified without delay.

MARINE DISASTER.

Wreck of the Steamer Dalhousie and Loss of Many Lives.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The steamer Dalhousie, Francis, master, which sailed this week from Liverpool for Calcutta, was totally lost yesterday off the Scilly Islands. All on board are supposed to have perished.

[Advertisement.]

A FACT TO CONSIDER.—Among the gallants of Thanksgiving, the introduction of KNOX'S Winter styles of gentlemen's Hats may be considered, if we can judge by the lively demand existing for them. KNOX, ever on the alert in seeking to gratify his patrons, is now selling at his establishment, No. 212 Broadway, the handsomest Hat yet introduced.

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, AND DISEASES OF THE
THROAT AND LUNGS
EXCLUSIVELY AND SUCCESSFULLY
TREATED BY
DR. E. B. LIGHTHILL,
The author of "A Popular Treatise on Deafness," "Letters on Catarrh and Kindred Diseases of the Mucous Membrane," &c., &c.

Knowing from experience that proofs of successful treatment are the most desirable credentials in public confidence which a physician can produce, Dr. LIGHTHILL is pleased to present a few specimens of the many certificates of cures which he received in the course of his practice. Thousands of certificates of a similar character, and emanating from the most reliable sources, will be cheerfully submitted on application.

CURE OF DEAFNESS.

FROM MR. MORRIS PHILLIPS.
Editor and Proprietor of the Home Journal.
OFFICE OF THE HOME JOURNAL, No. 3 Park-place, New-York.

I testify with pleasure to the success which attended Dr. LIGHTHILL'S treatment in the case of my brother, who had been afflicted with deafness and noises in the head. The results of Dr. LIGHTHILL'S applications were as prompt as they were effective. The hearing was restored, the noises removed, and the cure was as radical as it has since proved permanent. MORRIS PHILLIPS.

CURE OF CATARRH.

FROM REV. S. J. CORNEILLE,
Rector of All Saints' Church.
No. 20 GOUVERNEUR-ST., New-York.

DR. LIGHTHILL—Dear Sir: It is with great pleasure I tender you this acknowledgment of my appreciation of the benefit I have derived from your treatment. I present it that others who may be suffering from like causes as myself, may, through the publication of my experience, learn that under your care relief can be obtained.

I have been afflicted with Catarrh for many years, which at one time threatened the loss of my voice, and undermined my general health to such an extent as to necessitate a suspension of my pastoral duties. Two months of your medical treatment, however, afforded me such invaluable relief that I was enabled to resume my duties and perform them without the slightest inconvenience.

Having the highest appreciation of your medical skill, and with many thanks for uniform kindness and courtesy,

I am, dear Sir, yours very gratefully,
S. J. CORNEILLE, Rector All Saints' Church.

Dr. LIGHTHILL receives patients daily, from 9 A. M. until 3 P. M., at his residence,

THE
SILVER!
In England and France it is made obligatory upon Gold and Silver Smiths to have their various manufactures stamped with the fineness of the metal. But in this country there is no such law, and there may be serious frauds committed by unprincipled manufacturers. Whilst in the article of Gold Jewelry there are such frauds committed, yet there is no first-class Silversmith who will place his Trade-mark upon metal alloyed below our American coin. In the United States the standard of our coin is 900 parts silver and 100 parts copper, taking 1000 parts as pure. In England there are 925 parts silver and 75 parts copper. So that their coin is 25-1000 finer than ours. The Gorham Manufacturing Company have adopted the English standard for their wares. Every article stamped with their Trade-mark, (which is a Lion, an Anchor, and the letter G,) is absolutely guaranteed to be of the standard of 925-1000. So well is this fact now understood in the United States that whenever their Goods are offered there is not now an inquiry made as to the purity of the metal. The name carries assurance with it.

STARR & MARCUS, No. 22 John-st., (upstairs,) invite special attention to their unequaled assortment of Gorham Goods, comprising all their newest and choicest productions in Dinner, Tea and Dessert Services, as well as an endless variety of attractive Novelties for Wedding Gifts.
